

Elliott Cleaners Now Occupy New Home

Establishment One of Most Modern in Eastern Section of State

William S. Elliott, who operates Elliott Cleaners, on Monday resumed operations in a new and up-to-date establishment which replaces a rather dilapidated frame building on East Queen Street. Only four weeks ago the construction of a new building was begun, which is now complete and fully equipped with all new and modern machinery. The building is of concrete blocks, fire-proof and all work is insured against loss, fire and theft.

Jack Pruden was the architect for the building, which is considered one of the most modern establishments of its kind in the eastern part of the State.

Mr. Elliott has adopted a pick-up and delivery service and invites his friends to visit and inspect the new building and equipment.

Home Craftsman Books High on Best Seller List

The greatest mass-production country in the world today, the United States, is still a nation of home craftsmen. This is proved, according to officials of the Government Printing Office in Washington, D. C., by the constant popularity of a 30-cent set of pamphlets entitled the "You Can Make It" series.

Prepared a few years ago by the National Committee on Wood Utilization, this set of three booklets has been a best seller in all seasons of the year. The publications contain illustrated instructions on how to make useful articles for the home, the garden and the camp as well as playthings for the children, using only a few simple tools, discarded wooden boxes, and odd pieces of lumber. Each book in the set tells how to finish the wooden articles to make them attractive as well as useful. Practically all the items are accompanied by detailed drawings. There are also drawings of the various tools and small pieces of hardware used in the construction. "These books are so easy to understand, that's what makes them so popular," a Printing Office official said.

Information on making things for outside the home such as a trellis, arches, lawn seats, dog house, bird houses, etc., and for inside the home such as racks, chests, bookcases, cabinets, camp furniture, etc., is to be found within the pages of the You Can Make It series. There is also useful information on wood selection, plywood, glues, glue joints and other woodworking details. Orders should be addressed to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. The 30 cents should be enclosed with the order (no stamps, please). All proceeds go to the government.

TOBACCO FLUCTUATES

Tobacco prices closed last week on Middle Belt markets with some leaf grades down from $1.00 to $6.00 per hundred. Old Belt markets reported slightly weaker prices, while on Eastern North Carolina markets, closing prices fluctuated mostly from $1.00 to $3.00 per hundred for poor to medium tobaccos with losses outnumbering the gains. The demand strengthened slightly on the Border at the close of the week even though sales for this season are practically over.

Plans Progressing For Staging 4-H Achievement Day

Members Being Encouraged to Enter Exhibits For Coming Affair

Plans are rapidly shaping up for the 4-H Achievement Day which will be held at the Edenton armory Saturday, November 2. Robert S. Marsh, assistant County Agent, reports that all members are being encouraged to enter exhibits and attend the affair, and that interest in the event is gradually increasing.

Prizes will be offered for the various group of exhibits, with the boys' exhibits probably being confined to peanuts, corn, garden, poultry and records.

Both Mr. Marsh and County Agent C. W. Overman are striving to have every club member turn in a complete report and record on his project this year.

"I'm sorry," said the driver of the baby car, "but I'm hooked on."

Here's one time it doesn't pay to be foxy!

REMEMBER the old fable of the fox who wanted some grapes that were high on a vine?

After vainly jumping for them a few times, he quit and said, "Oh well, those grapes are sour. I don't really want them anyway."

Sound familiar?

Aren't you sometimes like that fox when it comes to putting away money for the things you want?

You save for a while, then when things become difficult, you quit. You say to yourself, "Oh well, my savings would never amount to much anyway."

You're wrong there! Under the Payroll Savings

Plan, your savings really accumulate. As little as $3.75 put into U. S. Bonds through Payroll Savings every week will grow into $1004.20 in five years —$2163.75 in ten years! Higher weekly savings pile up even more.

And think of what those dollars will buy—a new car, many new home appliances, a good education for your children. They can even be a substantial down payment on a fine home, too.

Keep saving!

So... don't be a "fox" about your "grapes." Save for the things you want in the future, through regular Payroll Savings!
