

Tile Being Used To Drain Bottom Area On Chowan Farms

Paul Ober First Farmer In State to Have "Living Fence"

According to R. C. Jordan of the Soil Conservation Service, Louis and Thomas Francis of the Edenton community laid 500 feet of four-inch farm drain tile last week on their Satterfield farm on Mexico road. The tile was installed in a low bottom area which was of the springy-wet type. Cultivation operations were often hindered on account of the inadequate drainage. Both Louis and Thomas believe the drainage of this bottom will now be materially improved. Adequate outlet for the line of tile was found in one of the farm ravines which runs from Pembroke Creek.

R. C. Jordan and George A. Conner, Jr., of the Soil Conservation Service, assisted the Francis' with the tile installation. Their help in this instance consisted of making the necessary surveys, setting of batter boards for grade and supervision of the tile laying and backfilling.

Louis Francis will put in about 800 feet of this tile on his home farm soon. Here he expects to drain another bottom area.

Recently complete conservation farm plans were set up for Preston Monds, A. L. Boyce, Lloyd G. White, Sidney White and Noah Goodwin, Sr. These men will be assisted by the Albemarle Soil Conservation District in making the various conservation improvements to their farms, as listed in the farm plans.

Paul Ober set out 300 Multiflora rose seedlings about the first of March. Practically all of the seedlings are living even though put out in loamy fine sand. The planting was made in one straight row and will be used as 300 feet of fence—"living fence." The Multiflora rose seedlings were supplied Mr. Ober by the N. C. Wildlife Resources Commission in cooperation with the Albemarle Soil Conservation District.

According to Warren W. Currier, biologist of the Wildlife Commission, Mr. Ober is the first farmer in North Carolina to use Multiflora rose as a fence.

Japanese Beetles Again On Rampage

Farmers Urged to Exercise Own Control Measures

Japanese beetles have become such a menace in some sections of North Carolina that farmers and other property owners in these areas are warned to exercise their own control measures instead of relying on public agencies to check the invaders' depredations.

C. H. Brannon, head of the Entomology Division of the State Department of Agriculture, said that infestations have become so widespread that the joint state-federal control program is insufficient to cope with the problem.

"Those engaged in this program," he continued, "will have to concentrate this year on reducing infestation at loading points and preventing spread of the insects to new areas. Farmers and other property owners will have to use individual control measures to combat the beetles on their own land. Detailed information as to the proper methods may be obtained from county agents or from the Agricultural Extension Service at N. C. State College, Raleigh."

Publicity is a dangerous habit; some people make fools of themselves over a little bit of it.

The trouble with most adults is that they think their school days have ended.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our devoted husband and father, Jesse Asbell, who died July 2, 1947.

Two years have passed since you left us, And long the time has seemed. You suffered, oh, so long but bore it so well, Trying to have a smile for us When we were always trying to give relief.

We have missed you, oh, so much more than we can tell. Only relief comes from above is to live a life as you did, Prepared to meet you in Heaven where we shall be parted no more.
