

Governor Umstead Urges Support Of Red Cross Drive

Chief Executive Designates March as Red Cross Month

Governor William B. Umstead, in issuing his first official proclamation since taking office, has designated March as Red Cross month in North Carolina and called upon all Tarheels to "give support to their Red Cross in its 1953 Fund Campaign."

The Governor's proclamation cited "the neighborly, humanitarian services of the American Red Cross" and pointed out that Red Cross "helps to keep alive in the minds and hearts of people the elements of service, sacrifice, love and mercy."

At the time of issuing the proclamation, Governor Umstead received a report from K. C. Lattimer, AIRC director of field services in North Carolina, outlining the accomplishments of Red Cross chapters in the State during the 1951-52 fiscal year.

According to this report, almost 28,000 active servicemen or members of their families called upon the Red Cross last year for welfare assistance, often involving such emergencies as illness, death, or pressing family problems.

In handling these requests, hometown chapters worked with staff assigned to Korean battle areas, military hospitals, and installations in the U. S. In addition to these servicemen, 5,500 Tarheel war veterans received claims or welfare assistance.

Chapters in 85 counties, Lattimer reported, collected 83,000 pints of blood last year for the fighting forces and for civilian needs.

On January 1 this year, these chapters started stepping up their defense blood collections to obtain additional blood needed for processing into gamma globulin, which will be used in the prevention of paralysis from poliomyelitis. Chapters in all North Carolina counties now are collecting funds to help finance this program, which will cost the Red Cross around $7,000,000 for equipment, personnel, and processing of blood.

A total of 12,000 Tarheels qualified last year as Red Cross first aiders, 750 as first aid instructors; 3,000 completed courses in home nursing; and 17,000 completed swimming and lifesaving courses. The state's schools have 480,000 students enrolled in the

Edenton Among Several Cities to Hear Heart Specialist

The new post graduate courses in medicine, sponsored by the University of North Carolina School of Medicine and Extension Division, opened in the Eastern part of the State this week.

Sessions got underway on a weekly basis for four weeks in Kinston Tuesday and in Edenton Wednesday. The programs in the Edenton area will be held alternately in Edenton, Elizabeth City and Ahoskie.

Afternoon clinics at 4 P. M., and dinner lectures at 6:30 are scheduled in all towns, the Kinston meetings being held at the Memorial General Hospital Nurses' Home (afternoons) and Kinston Hotel (evenings), while both the Edenton sessions will be held at the Chowan Hospital.

Speaking both at Kinston Tuesday and at Edenton Wednesday was Dr. William Stroud, heart specialist and professor of clinical medicine in the University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Medicine.

He discussed coronary artery disease at the afternoon programs and treatment of cardiovascular disease at the evening sessions.

A Fellow of the American Medical Association and chairman of the Section on Internal Medicine, Dr. Stroud is consulting cardiologist to the Pennsylvania Graduate Hospital, director of the Heart Station and chief of the adult and children's heart clinics.

In addition to being associated with the larger Philadelphia hospitals in an advisory or active consulting capacity, Dr. Stroud is a delegate to the American College of Physicians to the Rheumatic Fever Council of the American Heart Association and chairman of the Rheumatic Fever Committee of the Pennsylvania Department of Health and of the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania.
