

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

By JAMES H. GRIFFIN, Soil Conservationist

Sixteen farmers in Chowan County became district cooperators of the Albemarle Soil Conservation during April. These farmers signed an agreement with the district saying they wanted to develop soil and water conservation plans on their farms. These farmers are Thomas P. Griffin, W. S. Morris, C. W. Tyne, G. E. Nixon, John Parrish, B. C. Hare, J. D. Harrell, J. L. Forehand, J. W. Goodwin, Jr., J. H. Morgan, Lloyd Briggs, J. H. Roberts, Gordon Boyce, W. A. Harrell, G. S. Goodwin and Robert Capehart. A soil surveyor will map the soils on these farms within the next few weeks. After the soils have been typed, the maps will be used by the farmers and the work unit conservationist to make the soil and water conservation plan.

Rotations will be worked out for the crops grown on the farm. Such things as diseases, insects, soil type or suitability, economic conditions and other factors will be considered in working out this rotational system for the farm. The farm plan includes all phases of farming necessary for good land use of the soils found on the farm. Where needed forestry and wildlife practices, drainage, contour rows, sod waterways and other practices are planned to be done in the future. Actually, a farm plan is an inventory of the things needing to be done on the farm to come and protect and conserve the soil on the farm.

Land is classified into seven land classes according to the capabilities of the soil. Class I land will grow most crops every year with only good management practices. Class II land needs moderate conservation treatment. Sometimes this treatment consists of drainage, contour rows, sod crop, or soil-building crop like crotalariae. Class III land is land that, because of one or more reasons, it needs intensive conservation treatment. In this section of the state it's usually a complete drainage system but it could be a fertility problem on some of these deep sands. Class IV land is land that should be in perennial vegetation most of the time. About one crop in four years is the best that can be expected from this land. Drainage is usually the cause of these conditions, although, in certain parts of the county fertility of certain deep sands are the cause of the Class IV rating of this land.

There are four more classes of land found on farms. This land should not be cultivated because of the hazardous conditions in which it is located. Severe drainage, fertility, or erosion conditions are present and if cultivated the farmer cannot expect a net return from his farming. These classes of land are used for pasture, hay, woodland, wildlife or other perennial vegetation. Class V needs normal good care for pasture, hay, woodland, or wildlife. Class VI needs careful management for these practices. Class VII needs extremely careful management and Class VIII land is suited only for wildlife and recreation.

Most of the farmland in Chowan County is in the first four classes and can be used for cultivated crops if good soil management practices are used. These soil management practices are rotation adequate drainage, soil building crops (crotalariae, vetch, crimson clover, etc.), cover crops and proper lime and fertilizer.

A good conservation plan on your farm can make you money and save your soil for future generations to use for their livelihood, too.

TAX COLLECTIONS

Sheriff J. A. Bunch reports that during April 1955 taxes collected amounted to $11,623.65. This brings total 1955 taxes collected to date to $166,626.06.

A list of those who have not paid their 1955 taxes appears in this week's Herald and property will be sold at the Court House door Monday, June 4, if taxes are not paid before that time.

By a Hair

"My wife won an argument with me this morning by a hair."
"What was the argument, handsome?"
"That I'd had a blonde's head resting on my shoulder."

DREAM TRAIN'S A REAL "SOUVENIR"—At eight, all she wanted to play was the song of the rails, but daddy gave her a grand piano. So reveals Margaret Truman, in her autobiography, "Souvenir." An alert publicity agent made her dream come true at a New York City press conference announcing her story, and gave the daughter of the former president this toy diesel switching locomotive.

Who's That Popular Girl? Not necessarily the prettiest girl at school nor the one with the most elaborate wardrobe. Usually she is the girl who genuinely likes other people, has friendly manners and a knack for making everyone around her comfortable and happy. While she may not be a cover girl, you may be sure she's always groomed to the last shining hair. She has lots of interests, likes to dance, swim, sew and cook. Maybe it's because she is a good hostess and can cook that the crowd always makes a bee line for her house.

Just between you and me, you can do what she can do if you set your mind to it!

Pancake Time, Anytime—Pancake time is anytime, whatever the season. Everybody loves pancakes from the good old stack of wheats to the very elegant crepes suzette. Pancakes make a hearty dessert and are lots of fun for a mid-morning brunch party. You won't recognize the party pancake that turns up as the luncheon's main course. Hot off the griddle and ready for fame, serve sausage roll-ups and cinnamon apples—a wonderful mid-morning brunch idea. Roll pancakes around plump pork sausage and serve with cinnamon apples. It's a wonderful combination. See if you don't agree.

For cinnamon apples, combine 1½ cups water, ½ cup sugar, and ¼ cup of cinnamon candies. Bring to boil. When candies have melted, add apples. Continue cooking over low heat, turning apples frequently. Cook until apples are tender when pricked with a fork. Remove from hot liquid.

Pan fry pork sausage links. Place two cooked sausages across each pancake; roll up. Arrange on platter with cinnamon apples. Serve hot liquid from apples to pour over pancakes.

Table Etiquette—Do you panic at the thought of setting a table for a party dinner—or even going to one and not knowing which fork to use? There's no need to worry. Table setting rules are sensible and simple. Remember it's good etiquette to follow your hostess' lead. Don't start to eat until she does and then use the same piece of silver. The host sits at one end of the table, the hostess at the other end. A lady guest of honor is seated at her host's right; a gentleman guest of honor at his hostess' right.

Placing Silver. To set the table, use only pieces of silver necessary for the meal. Place silver about one inch from the edge of table, with pieces to be used first on outside. Knives and spoons go to the right of plate, forks to the left.

Table Linens—Fold napkins square or rectangular and place to the left of forks. Tablecloth should overhang the table 10 to 15 inches and should be exactly centered on the table. If you use placemats instead of a tablecloth, they should be set one inch in from the edge of the table.
