

Tyner Boy Scouts To Be Rechartered

Troop No. 154 Under Capable Leadership

What is a boy? According to Alan Beck "A boy is a fellow with dirt on his face, beauty with a cut on his finger, wisdom with bubble gum in his hair, and the hope of the future with a frog in his pocket."

The Center Hill Home Demonstration Club agrees with Alan Beck and since Center Hill has a majority of boys, the club is doing its bit to mould this group of fine boys into worthy citizens of tomorrow by sponsoring Tyner Boy Scout Troop No. 154.

The club, as the sponsoring organization, provides a meeting place, competent leadership and the interest of sympathetic adults.

Tyner Boy Scout Troop No. 154 is now in the process of rechartering under the leadership of Emmett P. Jones, chairman of the committee; Charlie Asbell, Scoutmaster; C. B. White, Jr., senior patrol leader; C. H. Davis, assistant scoutmaster, and Committeemen J. Cameron Boyce, E. L. Belch, J. S. Turner, C. B. White, Sr., Thomas Rogerson and Garland Asbell.

This group of men with District Scouters Ray Collier and Fulford Munden of Elizabeth City met April 22nd to recharter, and are now ready to work and play. With the leadership of these capable men the Home Demonstration Club of Center Hill is looking forward to an effective and a successful year in Scouting and in citizenship training and character development of boys to be, as the Scout law reads, "trustworthy, loyal, obedient and reverent Scouters now and tomorrow dependable and worthy citizens."

Washington — Nation-wide protests rolling in on Congress against high taxes — accompanied by threats of a "tax revolt" — have made a deep impression in Washington.

An immediate result is a scramble for political advantage that would come from lowering the onerous burden of federal taxation. This contest centers in Congress.

There is sentiment in Congress to enact a tax cut bill before adjournment of the present session — effective next January 1. This sentiment is found chiefly in the House. Senators talk more of a tax cut bill next year.

Congressional Sentiment—Members of the House—especially sensitive to public sentiment—say that their mail demanding tax reduction now equals that urging the slashing of President Eisenhower's $74.8 billion budget.

Speaker Rayburn, after a meeting with Democratic members of the tax originating House Ways and Means Committee, said that while chances for tax cuts appeared good, Democrats will not make a decision until "around June" on whether they will try to push through a bill this year to take effect next January 1. Mr. Rayburn added that Democrats are not going to be "irresponsible."

Rep. Reed (R-N.Y.), ranking Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, called promises of tax reduction "vague and premature." While convinced that "lower taxes are essential," Mr. Reed added that such reduction "can be realized only to the extent that reduced government spending makes it possible or to the extent that such tax reduction compels a concomitant spending reduction."

A cautious attitude towards tax cuts is also evident in the Senate. Sen. Byrd (D-Va.), chairman of Senate Finance Committee, wants first to see the end result of budget-cutting efforts, which now total about $1 billion. He indicated that $3 to $4 billion would have to be cut if tax reduction talk is to be translated into action. Sen. Bridges (R-N.H.), ranking Republican on the Senate Appropriations Committee, takes much the same view.

Should the Democrats try to push through tax reduction, it is almost certain that it would be either a $100 increase in the present $600 personal exemption; the old discredited $20 tax credit; or a split in the first $2,000 bracket, with a lower rate, probably 10 per cent, instead of the present 20 per cent, applying to the first $1,000.

Republican strategy as to the exact form of tax reduction to be supported, should the Democrats open such a drive later in the session, is not quite clear.

Labor Union Restrictions—Behind the scenes Congressional discussion revolves around this question: Can Congress afford to go home without enacting desirable labor union legislation?

Some members feel that the people—including union members—have been so outraged by disclosures of labor union racketeering that Congress will be severely criticized if it does not enact legislation.

Opposed to this view is a belief that big labor unions would be satisfied to see some "milk and water" legislation rushed through Congress in order to forestall fundamental changes in labor laws.

Legislation is pending in the Senate to provide for some federal supervision of union welfare and benefit funds. But members of the McClellan racket investigating committee know that this is only one of the problems involved in union corruption.

Senator McClellan (D-Ark.), chairman of the Senate investigating committee has indicated the possibility of legislation being offered by the committee in June.

Meanwhile, the racket investigating committee swung into disclosures of union force and violence and use of "goon squads" and "terror tactics" to force compliance with union dictation.

IS THE WINDOW LOCKED?—Susan Leary, 3½, isn't at all abashed as she peers through the window of car in Minneapolis, Minn., to get a closer look at a lion lolling on the back seat. The big cat drew quite a crowd when its owner, zoo keeper Harry Gabel, left it in his car while on a shopping trip.
