

State Hog Show August 21 And 22

North Carolina's third annual State Market Hog Show and Sale is scheduled for the State Fair Arena in Raleigh August 21-22. The event is expected to attract more than 200 top grade hogs from throughout the state with buyers from several south-eastern states.

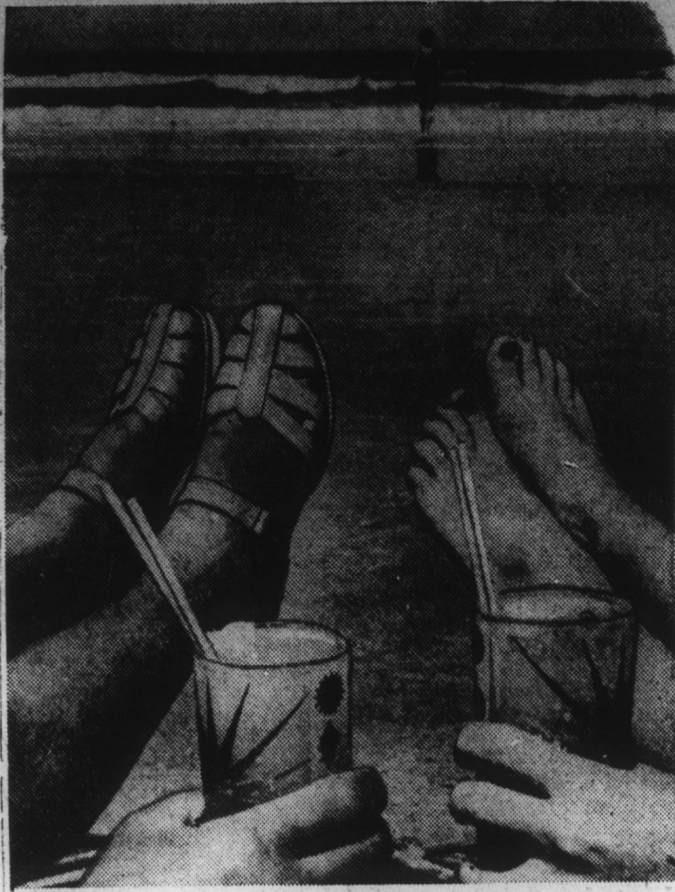

Jim Butler, animal husbandry specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service at State College, says the show and sale this year will again feature both adult and junior exhibitor's divisions. The junior division is open to any North Carolina boy or girl between the ages of 10 and 20. The animals in this division are not shown by breed, but all junior exhibitors compete for the championships in this division.

The adult division, or open show, is open to any North Carolina farmer, or any hog produced in North Carolina, explains Butler.

The show is not a purebred show, hence is open to all breeds and cross-breeds. Cross-bred hogs will be assigned to one of the breed shows designated by the official entry committee. There will be seven shows, one for each of the major swine breeds in this state and the grand champion over all breeds and cross-breeds will be selected from the champions of each show, plus the champion of the junior show.

Butler says there is an excellent possibility that the State Market Hog Show will be won many times over the years by commercial producers. In the past two events commercial producers have an enviable record, having won the first event; the second statewide event was won by a purebred breeder.

Animals do not have to be entered before the show, but all animals must be weighed, ear tagged, graded and catalogued on August 20, between the hours of 6 A. M. and 6 P. M. Anyone driving a long distance who wishes to unload hogs on the afternoon of August 19 may do so, but these animals will not be weighed and catalogued before August 20. Positively no entries will be accepted on August 21. The show will begin at 7:30 A. M. on August 21, and will be followed by a sale of animals consigned and entered in the show at 7:30 P. M. on August 21.

Sweet Potatoes Decline In July

The North Carolina sweet potato production as of August 1 is estimated at 2,204,000 cwt. by the North Carolina Crop Reporting Service. A crop of this size would be 7.2 per cent less than the 1956 production of 2,376,000 cwt. and 18.1 per cent below the 10-year average of 2,690,000 cwt. Current yield prospects point to 58 cwt. per acre, compared with 66 cwt. in 1956 and 59 cwt. for the 10-year average.

Although the sweet potato crop still has time for improvement, this crop shows definite signs of damage from doughy conditions which plagued a large portion of the commercial crop area during most of July. Growth is not up to normal and some fields have taken on a yellow cast as a result of deficient moisture.

Don't Throw Away Watermelon Rinds

The next time you and your family enjoy a watermelon make it a double enjoyment by saving the rinds and making some of the good old-fashioned watermelon rind pickles.

According to Iola Pritchard, Agricultural Extension Service food conservation and marketing specialist, this recipe for watermelon pickles is an excellent one. Here are the steps:

1. Dissolve 1 vial lime (11.5 grams) in water.
2. Add 10 to 11½ pounds of rind and soak overnight.
3. Rinse well in the morning.
4. Cover with plain water and boil 20 minutes.
5. Rinse.
6. Boil rind in salt water (13 cups) for 20 minutes.
7. Rinse again.
8. Put 10 pounds of sugar and ½ gallon of vinegar in container.
9. Put in bag: ½ can whole allspice, ½ can whole cloves, ½ dozen ginger sticks.
10. Add rind and boil (not simmer) slowly for 2 hours.

11. Seal hot in hot sterilized jars and process 10 minutes at simmering temperature (180 degrees).

If you follow this simple step-by-step procedure, Miss Pritchard says you should have tasty watermelon pickles that you and your family can enjoy for months to come.

Raleigh—In a study of drivers involved in fatal auto accidents last year, the State Department of Motor Vehicles found that traveling salesmen and housewives apparently were the safest drivers on the road. The figures showed only 19 salesmen and 43 homemakers involved in death dealing accidents. At the other end of the scale farmers and commercial drivers were involved in 163 and 144 fatal accidents respectively. In all there were 1,270 drivers involved in 960 fatal accidents on Tar Heel highways.

That Is The Question

She—"And after we are married, will you give me an allowance?"

He—"Assuredly, dear."

She—"A liberal one? So that I may buy anything I like?"

He—"Of course, darling. You may spend my money just as fast as I can make it. Any other question?"

She—"Yes. How fast can you make it?"

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

have been overly in love with Michal—not according to modern ideas, at least.

This ancient friendship stands as a model for our own time. Jonathan trusted his friend and refused to be angry with him over future possibilities of strife for the throne. He had nothing material to gain from his friendship with David. If he had been the least suspicious or envious, he would have joined with the King in removing a possible rival claimant to the throne. The story of real friendship is that it seeks its reward in the enjoyment of the relationship, and in no other way.

The modern life is so speedy and men drive so hard for material things that time for enduring friendships is often lacking. Busy men neglect their friends of the past and make few new ones. We live surrounded by acquaintances, without enjoying all of the splendid possibilities of human friendliness. To have friends, we must know each other, understand each other and, in that way have a basis for the confidence and trust which is essential to true friendship. From an unknown author, we quote the following lines, in the hope that it may cause some reader to do something about the matter:

Around the corner I have a friend,
In the great city that hath no end.
Yet the days go by and weeks rush on,
And before I know it a year has gone,
And I never see my old friend's face,
For life is a swift and terrible race.
He knows I love him just as well
As in the days I rang his bell
And he rang mine; we were younger then,
And now we are busy, tired men,
Tired of playing a foolish game,
Tired with trying to make a name.
"Tomorrow," I say, "I will call on Jim,
Just to show that I'm thinking of him."
But tomorrow comes and tomorrow goes,
And this distance between us grows and grows,
Around the corner—yet miles away.
"There's a telegram, sir," "Jim died today."
And that's what we get and deserve in the end—
Around the corner—a vanished friend.

60-SECOND SERMONS

Text: "Most friends are proved by our sorrows or theirs."—Eff Thomas.

Two women were talking in a crowded courtroom.

"Lucille," asked one, "how much is that lawyer going to charge you for handling your divorce?"

"Oh," explained Lucille, "he's not charging me anything! You see, he's an old friend of my husband's, and he's getting me my divorce as a favor to him."

The best test of friendship is found in sorrow—yours or theirs. Friends will come to you in your sorrow. You will be with them when they are sorrowing. Sorrow proves, also, that our friendships are too few. We should study the art of acquiring friends.

There is nothing mysterious about gaining friends. Emerson said all that you have to do is "be one." However, that is not easy. Being a friend one must be prepared to give away much of himself, see his offerings rejected and continue to give. Friendship grows by giving. Like the bread and fishes in the Biblical parable, when we give friendship away, there is always plenty for everyone. "To have a friend, be one."

Keeping Current... For Economy!

In the illustration above, you see a very happy man at a very wonderful moment.

The title, the keys and the car are his—and he's starting out on his first journey at the wheel.

Of course, there's not much doubt as to why he decided to purchase a new Cadillac.

Like everyone else who selects the "car of cars", he did it to "keep current", so to speak, on all of Cadillac's new miracles of performance and beauty and comfort.

But coming to Cadillac, as he did, at this particular time of the year, we also suspect that he was inspired by the added motive of practicality.

For in addition to the normal Cadillac economies of modest purchase price, low operating cost and high resale value—Cadillac dealers are, at this time, seasonally prepared to make Cadillac ownership even more attractive than ever.

Because of the demand for used cars and because of increased production of the Cadillac car itself, the odds are that this gentleman received both a generous allowance on his previous car and prompt delivery of his new Cadillac.

Have you considered how wonderful it would be to step into a Cadillac of your own? Then, you should pay your dealer a visit—spend an hour on the highway in the luxury of Fleetwood coachcrafting—and get the facts for yourself.

You'll agree, we know, that the car is Cadillac—and the time is now!
