The demonstration Club members... ward with much anticipation... their Christmas parties... were very successful... each club party was different... though similar in many ways...
Advancing women invited their husbands to their party. After singing Christmas carols, Mrs. Bristol... gave a short talk on "Lighting Christmas Candles." As she lit the candle, she related the significance of the colors of Christmas. Mrs. Alton Harrell... very entertaining recreation... there were nineteen present...
Gum... were hostesses to their families... a party in the Rocky Hock... Mrs. Clarence Bass... assisted by several children, presented the devotion and candle lighting service. The children explained the group with Christmas poems and carols. Miss... had the recreation after which gifts were exchanged and delicious refreshments were served...
Byrd... met with Mrs. Dan Carter... president, Mrs. Geo. Smith, conducted the devotion and read a story "Christmas On An Old Southern Farm." The story was reminiscent of Christmas when children looked forward to receiving the orange they had waited for all year, and how children used to crack hickory nuts for the Yuletide season. This story brought back memories to those attending. Mrs. D. M. Reaves read an inspirational Christmas Prayer by the Rev. Peter Marshall. Mrs. H. M. Phtthis presented the candle lighting program. During the social hour, recorded Christmas music was enjoyed by the group...
Chowan Club observed Christmas in a slightly different manner. They decided not to exchange gifts among themselves this year, but to bring a gift for their club house. Some of the gifts the club house received were glasses, dessert plates, platters and a large waste basket...
Wards Club women entertained their families at a buffet supper. Turkey with all the trimmings highlighted the meal. Mrs. James Ward, assisted by some of the club women and children, presented the devotion and the lighting of candles. After supper, Mrs. Ward led the group in recreation. Although it was snowing outside, everyone was warmed with their fellowship together...
Mrs. Jack Leary was hostess to the Rocky Hock Club with only one member absent. Mrs. Leary's home showed real Christmas spirit with many holiday decorations. The members were very happy to have a visitor, Mrs. Bill Leary, at the party. Mrs. O. C. Long read the Christmas story after which Mrs. Henry Bunch lighted the candles. Recreation proved to be most enjoyable for the group, with delicious refreshments served afterwards...
Center Hill Club met at the home of Mrs. J. N. Boyce with Mrs. Cameron Boyce and Mrs. Hallet Hobbs as joint hostesses. Mrs. Hobbs conducted a very inspirational Christmas program. Following the recreation, the group was invited into the dining room. The festive holiday table featured a milk glass punch bowl on a beautiful red table cloth. Punch, congealed salad, cookies, ham biscuits and candy were served...
Oak Grove Club was pleased to have approximately 50 persons in attendance. Mrs. Elbert Peele led the devotion followed by group singing of Christmas carols. Mrs. Percy Nixon and Mrs. Marvin Evans directed the recreation. After gifts were exchanged, refreshments of fruit, punch, cake, and nuts were served...
Beech Fork Club met at Mrs. John Layton's. Her home was glowing with Christmas spirit throughout with many Christmas arrangements which Mrs. Layton had made. Mrs. Paul Ober directed recreation for the women and children. At the rally decorated table, Mrs. W. H. Saunders poured coffee as the guests were served Christmas refreshments...
Edenton Club met at the home of Mrs. Lester Copeland. Mrs. T. L. Ward, president, conducted the program. Mrs. R. S. Ward, whose hobby is collecting poems, read her favorite Christmas poem. After recreation, gifts were exchanged and Mrs. Copeland served Christmas refreshments...
Enterprise Club members and their husbands enjoyed a buffet supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Harrell. A true festive spirit was felt upon entering the rally decorated home. Mrs. Wallace Goodwin conducted the Christmas program which was an inspiration to all who attended. A last Christmas supper was then served buffet style. The agent enjoyed all the Christmas programs of which the club presidents were in charge. She also wishes to thank the club for the nice ways in which they remembered her, and for the many beautiful Christmas cards she received.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Heavenly Father, with these disciples, revealing to them again in the fellowship of the church and said, "Where two or three are gathered in my name, there am I with you always, to the close of the age." (Matthew 18:20, 28:20).

It is, as we remember Jesus and think of the church today, to Jesus as the Leader of a small group founding the fellowship and faith of the church that we look. We also remember the disciples and Peter but we think of Jesus and the small group as the beginning of the church, the Christian Church. We do not look back and think of Peter as the founder of a church to be Jesus' church, and the one and only version that Christians are to have.

One of the great issues of the ages has been the question of allegiance to Jesus and allegiance to the church. If one can become convinced that he must give allegiance to the church in the form of allegiance to one specific church, as related to Peter, or to someone else, then it can readily be seen that he will conclude he must give allegiance to Jesus through this specific church, as Jesus' agent. We can either believe that this specific church is actually Jesus' one and only or that it is one of many. But Jesus would bear in mind, founded a fellowship and a faith among his disciples, not a specific church. Thus all can look to him—all who believe in the fellowship and faith that is the Christian conviction—as the founder of their church. Men have sometimes differed from this concept. Some have expressed a conviction in their faith of Jesus but a lack of faith in a specific church, or of churches. Henry James is said to have said to his brother: "I am willing to confess to the reality of God, but as for the church, it is a mere conventionality and I have no respect for it."

To which his brother replied: "Whoever confesses to the reality of God thereby confesses to the reality of the church, for ultimately God is the church." This is the simple way of saying, and believing, that Jesus is the foundation and the moving spirit of the church, and for all.
