

Marsh Buys Six Steers For 4-H Members

The sun shines somewhere every day. But some days it doesn't seem to shine anywhere—it looked as if the Assistant County Agent, R. S. Marsh, was stumbling in the dark for quite some time in trying to locate steers for Chowan County 4-H Club members. They were finally located, but not at a reasonable price. One steer at the Rocky Mount sale was bid in at 46½ cents per pound, while the others averaged between 33 and 34 cents.

Mr. Marsh had spent considerable time and travel in an effort to locate steers at a fair price. Finally, "Lady Luck" smiled on Chowan Club members, and they were able to buy choice steers for an average of 30 cents per pound. Mr. Marsh attended the sale at Greensboro with Hercules Byrum, who drove his truck. "We were unable to buy steers there," said Mr. Marsh, "so we went to the sale at Hillsboro at 7:00 P. M., September 25. We were very fortunate in having Guy Cassell and A. V. Allen, of the Extension Service, as well as Mr. Quinsberry of the N. C. Department of Agriculture, Livestock Division, helping us."

After sitting on "needles and pins" until after all the individual steers were sold, the agents bid 29.25 cents on six steers, from a pen of ten. It seemed to them that the auctioneer would never stop talking, but their bid held, and they got the first six steers which were driven from the ring, according to Mr. Marsh.

Byrum and Marsh were both very pleased with the seven they secured. Three of these steers weighed 650 pounds, one 600 pounds and the other one 685 pounds. One individual steer was bought at 31.25 cents, therefore each club member paid 30 cents per pound for his steer. According to the way steers have been selling at all the organized sales this fall, Mr. Marsh thinks that Chowan club boys got an excellent buy.

New Slant On Old Southern Custom

If you enjoy fried foods, as most Southerners do, you will welcome the new electric appliance that turns them out, done to perfection. When you use an electric deep-fat fryer, which automatically controls the temperature of the fat, food does not come out soggy from cooking too slowly and does not burn on the outside before it is done inside. You simply set the temperature control, a light on the fryer flashes off when the fat has reached the desired temperature and a thermostat automatically keeps it there. Electric deep-fat frying also eliminates smoking and popping. That all-important control is the very thing that makes electric frying economical because you can use the same fat again and again. As long as fat does not break down or burn, it can be stored in the fryer or preferably in the refrigerator. Since frying temperature remains even, flavors are not transferred from one food to another. There are several makes of deep-fat fryers available. Your purchase is an investment in convenience and it deserves careful shopping. As with all your electric appliances, you will get better results if you follow the manufacturer's directions as to type of frying compound or oil to use and the care and use of the fryer.

Mass Production Now Dominates Housing

Mass-produced housing has become increasingly dominant in the American market for single family homes in recent years, according to data compiled jointly by the U. S. Departments of Labor and Commerce. The figures show that more than four out of every five new private one-family nonfarm homes were constructed by commercial builders in the 1955-56 period as against two out of every three in 1949. The outstanding gain was shown by the classification of operative builders, those who do the complete job from buying land to selling finished houses.

As against this trend, owner builders who executed their own construction plans put up only about one out of every seven new single family nonfarm homes in the 1955-56 period, less than half the proportion in 1949. A Tall Tale

Traveling through the west, a thirsty tourist had holed up in a range town tavern during a brisk and not-too-brief shower, having resumed his journey, he was speeding up a long slope when he suddenly slammed on his brakes—so suddenly, in fact, that the car following him crashed into his rear bumper.

The driver of the second car leaned out and called angrily, "Hey, what's the idea?"

"Cautious," said the thirsty tourist thickly. "Slowing down for that big curve up there." And he waved toward a rainbow atop the crest of the slope.

When we hear news we should always wait for the sacrament of confirmation.

—Voltaire.
