A LIFT FOR TODAY

I will give unto thee the keys . . . Matt. 16:19.
The ministry of teaching is the golden key that unlocks the mysteries of the redeeming Gospel and the door to fellowship in worship and service, without which ignorance and prejudice would stand as road blocks in the way of Christian missions.

O God, promote in us a holy ministry of teaching, the heart to do it and the knowledge to do it according to Thy Will.

Edenton Can Benefit

Governor Luther Hodges has issued a proclamation calling on North Carolinians to observe Home Improvement Month during September.
This event is endorsed by the Federal Housing Administration. It is aimed at encouraging home owners to secure better housing through remodeling, repairing and modernizing their homes. Governor Hodges goes on to state: "We in North Carolina have come to realize the importance of maintaining clean, wholesome-looking, well-kept communities. We know that this is an essential factor in attracting new industries and encouraging business activity at the local level. We know also that the elimination of sub-standard housing and the maintenance of attractive residential areas are necessary to the creation of a desirable community atmosphere."

In designating the month of September as Home Improvement Month in North Carolina, the Governor has urged that all citizens take advantage of this opportunity to improve their standard of living.
In North Carolina there are approximately 200 lending institutions, including branches, qualified to make FHA property improvement loans that are insured by the United States Government. The FHA and the Governor of North Carolina urge those needing home improvements to apply to any of these qualified lending institutions for complete information.

There is room for home improvements and raising the standard of living in some sections of Edenton.

Welcome To Edenton

One of the problems of the Edenton School Trustees was solved late last week when it was announced that Hiram J. Mayo of Tarboro had accepted the position of principal of the Edenton Junior-Senior High School, succeeding Gerald D. James, who recently resigned.

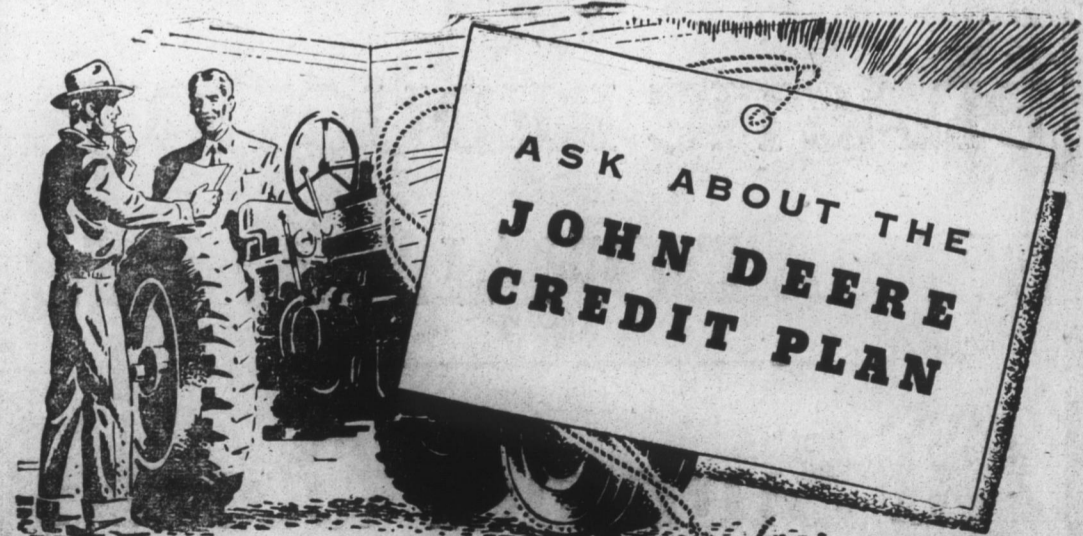

Mr. Mayo comes to Edenton with a background which should make him a first class school man, so that Edenton school officials feel fortunate in securing him to fill the vacancy. He has had a considerable amount of experience in teaching and administration, so that he should be a decided asset to the school's faculty.

Mr. Mayo is and has been connected with many educational groups and has also been active in religious and civic affairs. The family plans to move to Edenton about August 17, when Mr. Mayo will begin his school duties.

The Herald welcomes to Edenton Mr. Mayo and his family and feels sure he will find here a hospitable people and a congenial group of teachers to work with.

Money is seldom appreciated until there is none around.

The good neighbor policy should be practiced by more people, as well as countries.

A westerner, Judge W. K. McClean from Asheville, will preside over the next term of Chowan Superior Court, scheduled to begin Monday morning, September 14. The judge, no doubt, is an early riser, for he says the first day of court will open at 9:30 o'clock and on the following days at 9 o'clock. Those drawn for jury duty should take notice that they will be required to be on hand at the Court House at 9:30 the first day of court. "Sounds like the judge means business."

The Rev. Fred Drane has been enjoying himself sailing around in Edenton Bay. Mr. Drane built the sail boat and it is the first of such boats built in Edenton in many a day. Geddes Potter accompanied Mr. Drane on the maiden trip late last week and says the boat is a first class one and that Mr. Drane is a good skipper. Anyway, there are few sail boats in this neck of the woods, so that the Drane boat attracted a lot of attention.

Thanks to Asa Griffin, the Red Men enjoyed a watermelon cutting Monday night. The boys ate their fill and had some watermelons left. George Davis of Greenville, Great Sachem of North Carolina, was a guest of the tribe and he, too, was filled up with watermelon before heading homeward. One thing I found out is that Gus Bunch is not as fond of watermelon as he is of oysters and hot dogs.

Chowan County Commissioners wound up their business Monday before noon. The extra hour by meeting at 9 o'clock instead of 10 o'clock helped out in allowing time for the Commissioners to get home in time for dinner.

And speaking about the Commissioners, they are again het up a bit about the dog situation in the county. Monday morning they asked Mrs. M. L. Bunch to check on how many dogs are listed on the tax books. Mrs. Bunch reported that there are exactly 936 dogs listed on the tax books for the current year. Well, anybody knows there's a lot more than 936 dogs running around in the county and some of 'em do a lot of damage, especially on farms. Then, too, with a lot of "unowned" dogs running at large there is a grave danger of some going mad and doing even more damage. Messing with dogs is a ticklish problem, for some men would rather a man mess with his wife than his dog. Anyway, the Commissioners are seeking information from other counties and will, no doubt, be in a receptive mood to do something to reduce the dog population unless they are listed for taxes.

Quite a few of the churches are having revivals about this time of year. The only trouble is that mosquitoes in many cases are also apparently in need of religion for they, too, flock to the revival meetings. They also take part in the service by "singing" a solo as they fly around the ears.

My name is not the only one which gets butchered up. Just the other day William T. Elliott received a letter from a representative of the King Bros. Circus. The letter was addressed: "W. T. Elliott, care Jumbo Jibly Peanut Plant."

Somebody brought in a yellow key which was found on Broad Street Monday. Finder can secure it by seeing Wilborne Harrell at The Herald office. It isn't worth a cent to Wilborne but might be worth a lot to the owner who lost it.

Members of one of the Sunday School classes at the Methodist Church on Sunday morning advanced the idea of a project for the class. Mrs. Roy Hassell, president of the class, said, "That's a very fine idea, but how stands our treasury?" Mrs. Harry Lassiter, the treasurer, promptly answered the question by saying, "Well, the money box doesn't rattle when it is shaken." Well, a lot of money boxes are in the same shape, no doubt.

And speaking about Methodists, I heard that one fellow in town told another that he never sees his name in The Herald because he is not a Methodist. Well, friend, read the jury list for the next term of court and count the Methodists. Nope, brother, you're wrong, denominations mean nothing to me so far as news is concerned.

The huge pile of old piles at the foot of Broad Street is gradually becoming smaller. The piles are being sawed in about 12-foot lengths and being hauled away by a lumber concern. With all those stakes and piles removed, the waterfront has taken on a far more attractive appearance.

Thanks to the weather man, the long hot spell has been broken and for a few nights now a fellow could sleep without a fan or air conditioner. And then, we've had several days now without rain. Maybe the weatherman isn't such a bad cuss after all.

High School for a period of three years. Mr. Mayo is married to the former Miss Leah Mildred Ross of Greenville. She also attended East Carolina College and holds the AB and the MA degree in business education. She also taught in the John Nichols High School at Oxford and in the Tarboro High School for seven years.

Mr. Mayo is a member of the Masonic fraternity, two national honorary educational fraternities, Kappa Delta Pi and Phi Delta Kappa; Department of Elementary School Principals; National Society for the Study of Education; North Carolina Committee on Elementary Education; North Carolina Education Association; National Education Association; past secretary of the Tarboro Rotary Club; past president of Tarboro Civic Council; member of the Methodist Church and president of the Principals Division of the Northeastern District of the NCEA.
Mr. Mayo and his family will move to Edenton on or before August 17 and they will live at 217 West Eden Street. They have two children, a 12-year-old son and an 8-year-old daughter.

VFW MEETING
William H. Coffield, Jr., Post No. 9280, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will meet Tuesday night, August 11, at 8 o'clock. Commander John Bass urges a full attendance.

Little Leaguers Playing Outsiders

The Little League, in addition to its regular scheduled games, had some outside competition last week. A team made up of the Little League all stars traveled to Elizabeth City last Wednesday afternoon and played the Elizabeth City Little League all stars. The boys played a fine game even though they were a little excited and tense, this being their first outside game. The Elizabeth City Little League is a highly organized group. They are members of the Little Tar Heel League, which is a statewide organization. A second game was played in Edenton in which the Edenton boys did a much better job, even though they lost the game.

Another outside game for the Little League all stars has been tentatively scheduled for Thursday night, August 6. This game will be played with the Rocky Hock Little League all stars.

Standing of Teams

	W.	L.	Pct.
Varsity	9	3	.767
Lions	6	4	.600
Jaycees	5	7	.417
Rotary	4	10	.286

The ten leading hitters in the Little League follow:
Ronnie Rountree .45 22 .489
Perry Byrum .33 16 .485
Bill Cozart .31 14 .452
Michael Smith .60 25 .417
Phil Harrell .31 12 .387
Melvin Barnett .48 14 .292
Charles Swanner .64 18 .281
Bill Mitchener .61 16 .262
David Holton .48 12 .250
Surell Ambrose .52 12 .226
The Pony League game with the Rocky Hock team was rained out last Saturday afternoon. It has been rescheduled for 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, August 6. The boys of both teams would appreciate a large crowd for these two ball games.

HOSPITAL PATIENT

Ted Lassiter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Lassiter of 109 Oakum Street, fell from a roof at the Naval Air Station in Norfolk and is a patient in Norfolk General Hospital. He will be confined for some time. For the benefit of friends wanting to send mail, his address is Room 244, second floor.

No Comment

By JAMES W. DOUTHAT
Assistant Vice President, Government Relations Division of the National Association of Manufacturers

"NO COMMENT" is a report of incidents on the national scene and does not necessarily reflect NAM policy or position.

Washington, D. C.—The battle over labor reform legislation is entering the showdown stage in Congress, with the outcome in doubt. Southern Democrats and conservative Republicans are seeking valiantly to obtain House adoption of strengthening amendments to the ineffective bill reported by the House Labor Committee.

They are giving substantial support—in the part at least—to a new bi-partisan substitute bill introduced by Representatives Landrum (D-Ga.) and Griffin (R-Mich.), both members of the Labor Committee. The bills are identical. But there also is widespread feeling among the congressional group and throughout industry, that even stronger legislation is required to combat the evils of unionism exposed by the Senate rackets committee.

Vigorous efforts to obtain as strong a bill as possible from the House are planned while that branch of Congress considers labor legislation.

Whatever measure is approved by the House will be sent to a House-Senate Conference Committee to adjust differences between the House bill and the weak bill approved by the Senate last April.

Since these differences will be compromised in the Conference Committee, backers of effective legislation contend it is imperative that a strong bill be approved by the House. Otherwise, the final product is certain to fall far short of what is desperately needed to curb the monopoly power of union bosses.

The Landrum-Griffin measure, among other things, would stiffen curbs against organizational picketing and secondary boycotts, and authorize states to handle labor disputes local in character and over which the National Labor Relations Board declines jurisdiction.

Special attention to these three problems has been urged by the Eisenhower Administration—and Rep. Griffin said he would "hope and expect" that the Administration would support his measure.

But sentiment was sharply divided. House members seemed to be lined up in the following groups:

1. Those who want no labor legislation enacted.

2. Those who support the House Labor Committee. It is sponsored by Rep. Elliott (D-Ala.), since Chairman Barden (D-N.C.) of the Labor Committee refused to permit use of this name.

3. Those who advocate even weaker legislation. This is the public position of the AFL-CIO, although many observers think it would be delighted to settle for the House Committee bill in order to avoid more effective legislation.

4. Those who are supporting the Landrum-Griffin bill in the belief that, under the circumstances, it is the best measure that could win approval of a House majority.

5. Those who are convinced that every effort should be put forth to obtain approval of the strongest possible labor legislation.

There is certain to be some reorganization of these various groups as debate and voting continues. The big question, of course, is the line-up on the most crucial votes.

One of these crucial votes will probably be on adoption of the Landrum-Griffin bill as a substitute for the measure reported by the House Committee.

But industry hopes the amendments will be sought for approval of additional provision not contained in the Landrum-Griffin bill. These would include a secret strike ballot, regulation of union political activities, placing unions under antitrust laws, curbing compulsory unionism and restoration of traditional states' rights.

He Also Ran?

Friend Wife was up to her old tricks of going through her husband's pockets.

"And, who is Susie?" she demanded, waving a slip of paper before her husband's eyes.

The husband did some fast thinking. "Why, that's the name of a horse my boss gave me a tip on yesterday," he said with an air of injured innocence.

"Oh, yeah?" she screamed.

"Well, your horse called up and asked for you this afternoon."
