

SENATOR SAM ERVIN SAYS

Washington — Congress has returned to the Nation's Capital to face some of the most difficult problems that have confronted any session since World War II. Opinion among the lawmakers is apparently closely divided at this stage about a number of measures that are scheduled for hearings. Senate Majority Leader Mansfield is quoted as having said the other day that: "We passed most of the 'easy ones (laws) last session". Out of the mass of bills which will be introduced and the great number of bills that were carried over from the last session, momentous issues will develop over space, trade, aid to education and the aged, postal rates, taxes, and national defense. In my opinion, these will be the focal points of two over-riding concerns on the part of the Congress which a number of its members have gained from talking with their constituents back home. These concerns are: first, a desire for an effective foreign policy to cope with the menace of world Communism; and second, a belief that Federal government spending should be kept in line with the revenues coming into the Treasury to pay appropriations. Thus, foreign policy as it is carried out by the executive branch of the government and balancing the budget will likely carry the greatest weight as Congress considers legislative proposals. Congress will look at foreign policy too as it affects space, foreign aid and defense appropriations. All programs except possibly some phases of national defense may be viewed in the light of what will bring a balanced budget.

told a listening nation in his first State of the Union message that "our problems are critical." A year later, his statement remains true and measures the task of this Congress. What individual Senators and Congressmen have found in their home states and regions to be the critical problems will mold and shape the sentiment of the Congressional battles which will be waged in the days ahead. National defense, trade, and foreign aid policies appeared to be three of these critical problems. United States aid to other countries has passed the $101 billion mark as we begin 1962. We are confronted with gigantic defense problems. Old allies such as Turkey and Portugal are debating whether they should continue to be friends of the United States. The maintenance of our military bases in these two countries and their possessions is highly important to us.

Early Battles—Many of the early battles over legislation will come in the House Ways and Means Committee. During the first part of the session the Senate may be in the position of marking time until the House acts on some of the revenue and tariff measures. All in all, a number of Senate leaders feel that Congressional waters will be rough during most of the session.

Edenton Teams Top Plymouth Outfits

Friday night Edenton put on a blistering exhibition of the fast break and easily defeated a young but scrappy Plymouth ball club by a score of 63-39. Leading the Aces was Jay Ross, Edenton's 6-7 center, who pumped in 21 points and also grabbed a number of rebounds. Edenton, starting out in a 2-1-2 defense, was able to control the boards with the help of their two big men, Herb Adams and Wayne Griffin. As Edenton won their fifth victory in six games, again their defense proved to be their main asset.

Also in the scoring column for the Aces was Jimmy Dail, who scored 10 points and proved his defensive abilities again and again by blocking numerous shots. Though Richard Hollowell scored only eight points, his passing again stunned the opposition.

For the Plymouth Panthers, Manning scored 12, closely followed by Hall with 8.

In the girls' game it was Edenton's talented forward, Beverly Morgan, who scored 27 points and led the Acelets to a 50-38 victory over Plymouth Friday night. She was followed by Sue Bunch, who scored 14, and Marian Willis, who contributed 7. The guards, who are Ida Campen, Phyllis Twiddy and Barbara Alexander, were able to hold the Plymouth girls to 38 points.

For the losers Gardiner and Small each scored 17 points. Though Coach Paul Stanton still thinks his Aces are "green," he agrees that the game this Friday night with Ahoskie will tell the story.
