The man of integrity is one who makes it his constant rule to follow the road of duty according as Truth and the voice of his conscience point it out to him. —Mary Baker Eddy.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

tudes and actions as well. We must endeavor to help the needy in his name. (See Matthew 25:34-40). We must be good stewards of all our possessions and skills. We must freely forgive those who wrong us, return good for evil, and be willing to take up the cross and follow Jesus Christ even unto death.

Another factor we must remember if we are to grow in the Christian faith is that we must take time to "practice the presence of God." Although it is good to seek God's presence throughout the day, we should nevertheless set aside a special time each day for Bible reading, silent meditation, and prayer. Paul urged Timothy to rekindle the gift of God within him (2 Timothy 1:6). We cannot expect to build a mature faith if we do not make a constant effort to rekindle the gift of God in our inmost selves. And a maturing Christian will discipline himself in ways that will help him use his time, talents and possessions in the most Christlike manner of which he is capable. We fall short of maturity of faith when we fail to do this. Jesus, suffering in Gethsemane, knew what God's ultimate will was. But Jesus wanted to know how to fulfill it in the days that lay immediately before him. He used all the resources of his being as he sought for this guidance. During his period of temptation Jesus set the course of his life. He would not tempt God to do what he had been equipped to do. Nor would he try to do himself what God would do in a divine partnership with him. So he struggled to make his life fit in with the plan of God. We, too, should seek the inner discipline that will develop our resources to do what we can to bring God's kingdom on earth. If we do the good we know, then we will perceive more clearly the larger goals set before us. To ask God to do for us what we should learn to do for ourselves is an escape from maturity. Jesus faced the cross with a desire to do God's will rather than escape it. Here is the supreme example of mature faith.
