

Sunrise Services At Center Hill Church

Final plans for the annual Easter Sunrise Service, in which Center Hill Baptist Church, Center Hill Methodist Church, Anderson Methodist Church and Great Hope Methodist Church cooperate, have been announced by the pastors of those churches, the Rev. Claude Wilson and the Rev. Henry V. Napier. The service will be held at the Center Hill Baptist Church at 6 o'clock on Easter morning. Members of the churches and all others who may be interested are invited to this service.

The program as arranged calls for Easter meditation music presented by Mrs. W. J. Privott, pianist of the Center Hill Baptist Church, beginning at 5:50. The call to worship will be brought by the combined Youth Choirs and the Church Choir of the Center Hill Baptist Church. The invocation will be given by Joe Layden of the Anderson Methodist Church and the Men's Chorus from that church will bring special music. The welcome will be extended by Joe Wiggins of the East church and the Scripture story of Easter will be given by the pastor of the host church, the Rev. Henry V. Napier. A special prayer of thanks for Easter will be made by Thurman Harrel of the Great Hope Baptist Church and the church choir of that church will bring special music. The Easter meditation will be brought by the pastor of the Center Hill Methodist Church, the Rev. Claude T. Wilson and the benediction will be pronounced by C. B. White of that church.

On Dean's List

MISS BRENDA CHAPPELL
Miss Brenda Chappell, daughter of the late Oliver E. Chappell and Mrs. Chappell, was listed on the Dean's List for the first quarter of this year at Emmanuel College, Franklin Springs, Ga. been much more inclined to go along with Kennedy legislative proposals than has the House. However, the tax situation is potentially explosive—and anything can happen.

What happens depends primarily on the amount of opposition to, or support of, the Kennedy program, as expressed from the grass roots.

Needless to say, the Kennedy forces are continuing in the Senate the all-out campaign they waged successfully in the House. The vast resources of the Administration are being employed to the fullest possible extent.

The Administration's views were presented to the Senate Finance Committee by Secretary of the Treasury Dillon. He urged the Senate to change the House bill so as:

1. To repeal the 4 percent dividend credit and $50 dividend exclusion — which would discourage investment in the future of America. Repeal was voted by the Senate in 1959 and 1960 but was rejected by House-Senate conferees.

2. To make even more restrictive the provisions approved by the House rigidly regulating entertainment and travel expenses in connection with the operation of business. This would substitute the judgment of government bureaucrats for that of experienced business executives.

3. To eliminate provisions in the House bill permitting the deduction of certain expenses incurred in seeking to influence action on legislation at the national, state and local levels. Elimination was regarded as a serious infringement upon the right of freedom of speech. 4. To eliminate, as Secretary Dillon expressed it, the "tax deferral privilege now enjoyed by controlled foreign corporations in industrialized countries."

5. To restore the investment credit for new machinery and equipment to an 8 percent level—instead of the 7 percent voted by the House—and not extend it to regulated public utilities, including gas pipelines.

Dividend Credit

Repeal of the 4 percent dividend credit has been advocated by the Liberals in Congress since it was enacted as part of the 1954 Tax Code revision.

It was intended to stimulate investment in business growth and to provide some relief from double taxation of corporation profits and the portion of profits distributed as dividends: Thus, the dividend credit—although far from adequate—does reflect congressional recognition of the problem of double taxation.

Repeal would have an adverse effect on investor morale—and would eliminate a substantial source of venture capital.

The Treasury Department proposed a 10 percent dividend tax credit in 1954. This was accepted by the House but rejected by the Senate. A 4 percent compromise then was reached.

Expense Accounts

As for deduction of business expenses, Secretary Dillon urged that "the cost of business entertainment, including club dues, and the maintenance of entertainment facilities (such as yachts and hunting lodges) be disallowed in full as a tax deduction."

The Secretary criticized the House bill for failure to "provide for any allocation of traveling expenses when a trip is devoted partly to business and partly to vacation." He said that "deduction of the total expenses of such travel is a serious abuse problem today and a reasonable allocation provision is needed."

Narrow Margin in House

A shift of 12 votes would have defeated the Administration's tax bill in the House—but the determined campaign of the Kennedy forces succeeded by a 219-to-196 vote on final passage. The Republicans lined up solidly—with one exception—against the measure. Thirty-four Democrats voted against the Administration.

If there was a "coalition" on this bill, it could not be called a Southern Democratic-Conservative Republican one, as a majority of the Democrats opposing the measure on the final vote were Northern or Western members normally classed as Liberal.

Nat'l. Library Week Now In Progress

National Library Week began Sunday, April 8, with a very fine lecture at Regional Headquarters in Plymouth by Professor Richard Walser. His subject was the first books written by the early Colonists. After discussing this at some length, Professor Walser brought the group up to date by mentioning briefly twentieth century North Carolina authors, giving special credit to Inglis Fletcher, who is the only author in the State to write a whole series of novels depicting life on the coast from the earliest days of the Colonists.

The lecture was sponsored by the Friends of the Library in Plymouth. Plymouth's recent membership campaign brought the membership to 111. Annual dues will be used for much-needed equipment for the library, not included in the annual budget.

The slogan for National Library Week is "The Community That Reads . . . Leads". Shepard-Pruden Memorial Library was recently complimented by Library Consultant Miss Frances Gish on the quality of reading which patrons have been doing. She looked at many books, both fiction and non-fiction, during her recent visit to the library and was pleased at the number of names signed on the most worthwhile books. She was also glad to see so many new copies of the classics. It is hoped that those who have not yet been to the library this week, will stop in before the week is over.

Washington — The Kennedy Administration now is seeking to pressure the Senate into approving tax legislation much more detrimental to business and industry than even the measure passed by the House.

Hearings on tax legislation have started before the Finance Committee, headed by Sen. Byrd (D Va.), and were expected to continue for about five weeks.

Whatever bill is approved by the Finance Committee will be reported to the Senate for its consideration.
