R. W. Schuman, executive vice president of Colonial Broadcasters, Inc., addressed the Edenton Tea Party Chapter of the DAR on the Constitution at a luncheon meeting held Wednesday of last week at the Edenton Restaurant.

He was introduced by Mrs. W. E. Bond, chairman of Constitution Week, which is being observed by the chapter this week.

He described the Constitution as the "greatest political and humanitarian document the world has ever known."

He pointed out that the document established a limited constitutional republic with particular emphasis on what "government can not do" in the Bill of Rights and guarantees the rights of the individual.

He said, "I do not believe we need those who are interpreting and re-interpreting the Constitution as it is being done today."

The reference was to the members of the chapter.
