for financial aid. Old age assistance is a money payment in the form of a check for needy aged persons, 65 years of age or older, who meet eligibility requirements under law. All of the person's resources are taken into consideration in determining the extent of need when the county department of public welfare makes a careful investigation of each application, and as cases receiving assistance are regularly reviewed.

THE ROAD THAT LEADS NOWHERE

The road pictured here bears the time-worn marks of many travellers. Apparently it leads to some distant village or serves perhaps as a link between more vital thoroughfares.

But in reality this road does neither. Once, no doubt, it had a destination, but today it fades away into the woods a few miles beyond—a "dead end."

How many lives are like this road? They have promising beginnings, but instead of continuing to worthwhile goals, they wander aimlessly to final dead ends.

The Church teaches us to build useful lives and guides us toward noble achievements and ambitions. Regular attendance at church services gives greater assurance that our pathway of life will not lead us astray. On the contrary, it leads straight to the house of the peaceful mind and the contented heart.

For The People

By Bernadette W. Hoyle
Public Information Officer
North Carolina State Board of Public Welfare

A typical case history from the files of the county departments of public welfare in North Carolina reveals the story of a devoted son whose mother is receiving old age assistance payments? Why? Because he, like many other men with families of their own, is not financially able to support his mother.

This man, an only child, took care of his widowed mother from the time he was first able to get a job after he finished school. He married and had children and continued to support his mother. However, when the mother had a long illness and required expensive medical care and hospitalization, he had much difficulty in paying these bills and those of a growing family of children. At the same time he was making payments on a modest home and the eldest child was ready for college. He mortgaged the home, but the situation became increasingly worse, and as a result both he and his wife were in a constant state of anxiety. He saw no way out and felt that the situation was so serious that he would never be able to pay out of debt or do his duty to his family in the meantime.

At last he visited his county department of public welfare and explained the situation. Under law, the mother was found to be eligible to receive old age assistance. She was placed in a board home and the couple, relieved of the financial and emotional strain which they had suffered for years, are able to accept and deal with their financial situation more capably.

Another case history is that of an elderly woman who worked all her life as a saleslady. When poor health and advancing years forced her to quit work she had no means of support except a Social Security insurance payment of $60 a month. She had never married and had no relatives to contribute to her support. The Social Security payment was insufficient to take care of her minimum needs for living and medical bills. She lived alone in a small apartment and was able to take care of her physical needs.

Eligibility for old age assistance has made it possible for this elderly woman to have essential food, clothing, shelter, and medical attention when needed.

Many persons have outlived their savings or were unable to save enough during their working years, after paying their bills and their taxes, to provide for their old age. Others have no families to contribute to their support. Some become ill and use up their savings for medical treatment, or have other misfortunes that result in the need
