NO COMMENT is a report of incidents on the national scale, and does not necessarily reflect NIAM policy or position.

Washington — Some members of Congress are criticizing news conference statements by President Kennedy on the ground that he applied a double standard to management and labor.

He was questioned about labor disputes—in which "fact-finding" boards had been appointed and had made their recommendations—involving aerospace companies and the Chicago and North Western Railroad.

In the aerospace controversy, Mr. Kennedy asserted that the companies should accept the "fact-finding" board recommendations for a compulsory union shop.

"If there is a strike," he added, "the responsibility would be very clear."

In the railway dispute, the "fact-finding" board recommended, among other things, the elimination of costly "feather-bedding" practices of the union.

But, critics pointed out, all that Mr. Kennedy said about this was that he thought it "very important that the parties come to an agreement immediately."

Rep. Hiestand (R-Calif.) told the House that the Kennedy Administration's pressure for a union shop in the aerospace industry means real money to unions. He said:

"For the unions and union-supported politicians the spoils are high. One hundred thousand more men and women paying dues at $5 per month will result in an additional income of $5 million a year. No wonder the fight against individual freedom has been so fierce."

He added that Congress should "investigate the coercive nature of administration policy in the field of labor settlements."

$93.9 Billion Budget
President Kennedy's spending budget for the current fiscal year soared to $93.9 billion when he signed the legislation authorizing him to spend $900 million for pump-priming anti-recession public works projects. This "political slush fund for the President"—as opponents describe it—boosted Mr. Kennedy's spending program by $6.2 billion over the 1962 fiscal year, and by $12.4 billion over 1961.

The federal deficit for 1961 was $3.9 billion, for 1962 $6.3 billion, and the 1963 deficit is variously estimated at between $5 billion and $16 billion.

Mr. Kennedy's 1963 spending program started at $92.5 billion when he submitted his budget to Congress last January. Later it was elevated to $93 billion—and now to $93.9 billion.

And Mr. Kennedy still is urging Congress to give him standing authority to spend an additional $2 billion for public works if unemployment should increase.

Private Enterprise Foreign Aid

One aspect of foreign aid almost completely overlooked in voting taxpayers' money for this purpose is the vast assistance provided by American private enterprise abroad.

To assure consideration of this private aid by Congress in deciding on federal appropriations for the 1963 fiscal year, the Senate Republican Policy Committee made a study which Senator Hickenlooper of Iowa, the chairman, said disclosed that "American private activities abroad are really of staggering proportions and are of fantastic benefit to the various foreign countries."

Explaining that the estimates are "minimal," Senator Hickenlooper told the Senate that the study disclosed that American assets in foreign countries in 1961 totalled $56 billion and that direct investments of Americans abroad totalled $35 billion.

"In the year 1957, which is the last year for which figures are available in certain categories," the Senator said, "American investments abroad resulted in 3,200,000 jobs for foreigners."

"American investments abroad paid $6,878,000,000 in wages and salaries to foreigners."

"American investments abroad purchased $17 billion worth of materials and services."

"American investors paid $4.5 billion in taxes to foreign governments abroad."

Health For All

STERN MEASURES

Fifteen men were arrested recently in New York City. Their crime? They had tuberculosis in its active, infectious stage and had refused treatment. The men were placed in a penitentiary hospital.

They were arrested under a seldom-used section of the city health code, which empowers the health department to take action against those in the community who are considered a menace to the health of others. The men arrested will be discharged from the penitentiary hospital when they are no longer infectious.

These are stern measures, indeed, but in the circumstances justified. Tuberculosis is a serious, highly infectious disease. A TB patient who is coughing up large numbers of TB germs may be as infectious for tuberculosis as a child is for measles, a highly contagious disease. Maybe even more so.

By way of experiment, air from a tuberculosis ward was channeled to a guinea pig exposure chamber. As contrast, another chamber of guinea pigs were set up, just like the first one, except that the air the animals was irradiated with germ-killing ultra-violet light before it reached them. A large number of the guinea pigs in the first chamber became infected with TB germs.

Not only was it shown that the tuberculosis germs were borne on the air to the test chamber, but the investigators were able to pinpoint the patient who infected specific guinea pigs. One patient alone was responsible for infecting 15 guinea pigs in only three days of exposure.

CENTER HILL CLUB MEETS

Miss Pauline Calloway, Chowan County Home Economics Agent, gave an interesting and unusual demonstration "Young at Any Age," to the Center Hill Home Demonstration Club which met with Mrs. E. L. Belch September 18.

The ladies were told that they are only as old as they feel and to think young as joy in living, as zest for one's work, they will know that they can be young at any age.

Mrs. J. C. Boyce, president, presided over the meeting and used Psalm 101 for the opening devotion.

Final plans were made after much discussion for the "Ole Country Sale" which was community sponsored and held at Carlton Good's warehouse Saturday, September 22.

Announcements were made for the husbands' supper November 20 at Rocky Hock Central and Christmas Festival November 27 at the Chowan Community Building.

During the social period, Mrs. Belch served refreshments of ice cream, cookies and nuts. The group was dismissed by the Club Collect.

Collect.

Notice To The Public!

The tract of land formerly known as Edenton Air Base is now private property. The only roads open to the public are the road to the air strip; the Bower Road, which ends at the railroad track; and No. 32A, which goes directly thru the base. Anyone caught trespassing will be prosecuted by the law. This action was brought on by property being destroyed by sight-seers. Your cooperation will be greatly appreciated.
