SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

become aware of the Spirit?

All of us know how difficult it is to find the will of God for our lives. Usually we want a blueprint or a precise set of rules to follow. Therefore we need to ask, how does God guide us?

In his farewell discourse in the upper room Jesus said to his disciples, "When the Spirit of truth comes, he will guide you into all the truth." (John 16:13). In his keen desire to help people, however, Jesus never gave them rules; rather, he pointed directions. Through the presence of the Holy Spirit in our lives Jesus Christ is our eternal contemporary, a daily guide to bring the truths of God to us in a fresh and living way. To help us test whether a particular course of action is God's will for us, we need always to ask ourselves one simple question: Is it Christlike?

But the Spirit, besides being a comforter, as we have so often spoken of Him, is also a disturber. How is the Spirit related to conscience? By the Spirit's prodding the conscience is awakened. A voice within us is heard reproving, condemning, and urging us to mend our way. The Spirit keeps the conscience awake and sensitive to good and evil. When Jesus Christ lived upon earth, he proved himself a quickening spirit. Upon his departure he bequeathed the Holy Spirit to us to continue his quickening and life-giving work.

The Holy Spirit enables us to understand the deeper meanings of the truths Jesus taught and inspires us to express these truths in the new situations under which we live. How can we have the inner strength and reinforcement that are necessary for useful and abundant living?

The Bible gives a clear and simple answer to this question. The secret revealed is that spiritual power does not come from what we lay hold of; it comes from what lays hold of us. We do not achieve this power through our own effort. It is the gift of God to those who wait with receptive hearts and expectant faith.
