By KATE

It would be impossible to count the number of birds which come to our bird feeder each morning. They wait in a pecan tree and in the bushes for Buff to feed them, and I expect to look out the window most any time and see some of them perched on his shoulder. We both enjoy watching and counting the different kind and seeing them congregate. And, like some humans, they get in fights over the food. We mix fine cracked corn with wild bird seed and occasionally put bread crumbs on the feeder, too. One morning last winter we counted ten different kinds of birds. An inexpensive bird feeder can be made by nailing a garbage can lid on a broom stick and driving it into the ground high enough, away from the pestiferous cats.

Christmas gift wrappers, who discover ten thumbs (me) with a glance at a roll of ribbon, can find help at a hardware store. Buy inexpensive, multi-faceted dull brass studs, used in upholstery. After you have completed your ribbon design and are wondering how to hold it together and get it on the package, push the brass stud through the ribbon and into the box—thus a neat and attractive package.

Apothecary jars, filled with various spices, make nice gifts for the cook of the family.

Another "sweet" gift, made in your own kitchen and at a minimum of cost are the Pomander balls, made of clove studded oranges. Select large, firm oranges; stick whole cloves in the peel of the orange until completely covered with cloves. The cloves can be inserted more easily if holes have been made with the tines of a fork. Roll in a mixture of orrisroot and ground cinnamon, about a tablespoon and a half of the combined spices for each orange—pat in as much of the powdered mixture as will adhere to each orange. Wrap the pomander in cellophane paper. As the pomander dries and shrinks, it develops a spicy fragrance. Remove the paper and shake off excess spices and the pomander is ready for use in linen and clothes closets.

A holiday treat for dieters. For calorie counters who want a hedge against the holiday urge to splurge, here's an eggnog base that will let them enjoy the traditional Yuletide treat without qualms. Eggnog—calories in one serving, 161.

Bishop's bread: 3 cups biscuit mix, 3/4 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 1/4 cups orange juice, 1/4 cup sliced, blanched almonds, 1/4 cup glazed cherries, halved, 1/4 cup raisins, 1-6 ounce package of semi-sweet chocolate morsels. Combine sugar and biscuit mix in a bowl—add egg and orange juice and beat hard for 30 seconds. Stir in remaining ingredients, turn in greased loaf pan or mold. Bake in moderate oven for one hour. Cool before slicing, sprinkle with 4-X sugar. This is good, served with instant mocha drink, as follows: Combine 3 teaspoons quick chocolate-flavored mix with one level teaspoon of instant coffee and fill cup with hot milk. Top with unsweetened whipped cream, flavored with almond flavoring.

Housing Problem

"My girl and I would like to get married, but we don't have a place to live.

"Why don't you live with your parents?"

"Can't. They're still living with their folks."

A good New Year's resolution would be for everyone to try to be as cheerful and happy as they seem at Christmas.

with the 1967 session. The Senate would be based on population and the House on area.

"The Senate would have 70 members, apportioned on the basis of senatorial district population. Each Senator would represent an average of 85,000 people. Each district would be left up to the 1965 Legislature. If the job isn't done in that session, it would be taken over by a special redistricting commission.

President Bateman emphasized that the amendment plan is the fairest to all the people of North Carolina.
