

Planned Vaccine Program Forced To Be Postponed From Summer To Fall

Due to Inability to Secure Trivalent Sabin Vaccine Reason For Postponement

The Polio Committee of the First District Medical Society has been informed by the distributor of the trivalent Sabin vaccine that it will be unable to supply this vaccine for the vaccine program planned in March and May of this year.

The vaccine has to be thoroughly checked by the National Institute of Health before it is released for use.

All available vaccine has been already allotted for previously scheduled programs.

Since no such vaccine release is planned in time to complete a mass immunization before the beginning of the spring-summer polio season, it has been decided by the Polio Committee to postpone the immunization campaign until the fall of 1964.

The committee has already laid plans for such a mass Sabin vaccine immunization and the public will be advised when to expect this. The committee further advises that the public keep up their shots of Salk vaccine to continue their present polio protection.

The Health Department will issue new directions regarding their immunization schedules in view of the cancellation of the Sabin or oral polio campaign, according to Dr. T. P. Brinn of Hertford, medical director of the Polio Committee.

All-Practice Program Increases Peanut Yield In Chowan County

Chowan County peanut growers are on a production spree. They have boosted yields about 200 pounds per acre for the past two years, and they don't believe weather should get all the credit.

Better farming is the main reason, they say.

Getting more specific, County Extension Chairman C. W. Overman says credit should go to the All-Practice Peanut Program, which several groups in the county have joined in promoting.

All-Practice, as the name might imply, pulls together the best information on peanut production as determined by research and farmer experiences.

Youth Attempts To Break Into Office Of Postmaster Chestnut

Despite a brightly lighted lobby at the Edenton Post Office, an attempt was made sometime Friday night to gain entrance to Postmaster J. L. Chestnut's office. The molding was carefully removed from around the glass in the office door with what appeared to be a screwdriver and neatly piled against the wall. The glass, too, was placed against the wall.

The break-in attempt was discovered by Edenton police, who each night turn out the lights in the lobby and lock the outside door, which Friday night was a short time before midnight. The thief was apparently frightened away, for nothing was missed in the Post Office nor was anything disturbed in the office or other parts of the building.

On Saturday Edenton police arrested 16-year-old Solomon Jackson Jolly, who is charged with breaking and entering. Police say he admitted to the break-in and that he was looking for money. The young man is also charged with entering the workshop at John A. Holmes High School and stealing tools. He is also charged with stealing a cash box containing some money and postal supplies from Henry Bunch's car. Mr. Bunch is a substitute rural mail carrier. Police recovered all the stolen items.

Jolly is currently under a three years probation sentence in connection with thefts from purses of members of the Baptist Church Choir in January and for breaking into a private home.

In the neighborhood of 75 Chowan County friends of Congressman Herbert Bonner gathered at the Chowan Country Club Friday night to attend a Herbert Bonner Appreciation banquet.

Gilliam Wood presided over the meeting and at the outset stated that no arrangements had been made for long speeches. It was, he said, only a gathering of some of Mr. Bonner's closest friends in Chowan County in order to express their appreciation for what he has done for Chowan County, the state and the nation in his long service as Congressman for the First District.
