Parson Daniel Earl's Old Cape Colony To Schoolhouse Now Located On James I redell Property

Building Moved From New Scout Executive Bandon as Project of Edenton Tea Party Chapter of DAR

Thursday afternoon Parson Daniel Earl's historic schoolhouse ended its journey from Bandon Plantation to Edenton and now rests on the James Iredell property on East Church

Waff Brothers negotiated the entire operation with no untoward incidents while enroute and with the old building resting on long steel beams, it was pulled slowly by a truck up Broad Street and east on Church Street to its final resting place.

The historic school building fortunately escaped a disastrous fire in October of last year ble to save the old building.

Historic Building At New Location

The above picture was taken Thursday afternoon as the old Parson Earl school house was moved on the Iredell property on East Church Street. The old building escaped the flames when Bandon Plantation was destroyed by fire. It was moved from Bandon on a barge down Chowan River to the county dock, from where Waff Brothers continued the march up Broad Street and on Church Street to the historic building's new home.
