

OUTDOOR TIPS

from the Ancient Age Sportsman's Idea Exchange

Fishing Coveralls

Mechanics coveralls belong in every fisherman's closet. Multitude of pockets hold galaxy of gear. Double layer of clothes adds warmth on windy days. Inexpensive material saves wear and tear on regular fishing clothes.

Camp Note Board

The same note-keeping is yours in camp as well as the kitchen. Make a camp "black board" like this: Nail the screw-on cover of a jar to a handy tree. Notes are stored inside. Jar is weather-proof. New notes show at a glance.

Ice Plug

This winter make an ice plug out of scrap tin or aluminum. Will save hours of chopping next ice fishing season. Shape light metal into a cone. (One cone fits easily into another for storage). Next winter when leaving the lake, push the sharp end into chopped hole. Next fishing day, pour a teacup of alcohol into cone. Light. Heat melts sides from ice. Cone slips out. Hole remains.

Catfish Bait

Old hands along the Mississippi vow no better catfish bait exists than a striped meadow frog... dead or alive.

Skirt The Question

There's no question about what catches fish, especially in the dawn or twilight fishing of summer. Soup up your "lazy" plugs by drilling a hole in the end and gluing therein a shoe piece of 1/4-inch dowel. Slip plastic skirt over dowel. Tantalizing motion of skirt IRRESISTIBLE to big bass and pike.

Emergency Row

Ever lose an oar and have to row somewhere when wind wafts high? Difficult to make any progress at all. Next time try this: Sit as far as you can in the bow of the boat and row from there. Deep grip of bow on water will help keep course. A straight line, prevent boat being blown willy-nilly.

Long Canoe Trips

Are you lucky enough to be planning a long canoe trip? If so, pack an extra bag or two of salt. You can salt fish filets caught early in the trip to last to the end of it without spoiling.

Crappie Bait

Regular green shrimp makes a bait big bluegills and crappie go for. Two nice things about it: 1. Easy to buy in any store. 2. Stays on the hook like cement.
