Danger—Summer Madness at work—Did you know that the months of July and August are as accident prone as they are hot? Heat, lightning, overloaded boats, home-made rafts, inflatable floats and power mowers beside innumerable other summer hazards are constant lures to death and danger. Watch that sunburn—it'll get you before you realize it. Take the sun in slow doses and keep your lotion handy. But most of all, especially locally, with all the different places available for boating and bathing—BE CAREFUL—already this year there's been too many bad water accidents, lot of them being the result of not thinking ahead. This summer, have a good time, but try to be around in September to tell about it.

A cool drink. To give your iced tea a cool appealing look, use ice cubes that have a leaf of mint, a cube of lemon or a half of red cherry frozen in them. Makes for added attraction in other drinks, too.

Mrs. Hilda Brabble sent me several recipes a while back and somehow I misplaced them, but she was kind enough to send them to me again. Here is her special recipe for soft gingerbread:

1 cup molasses, 1 cup sugar, 1/2 cup cooking oil, 1 cup water, 2 heaping teaspoons of ground ginger, 1 heaping teaspoon cinnamon, 4 cups of plain flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1 level teaspoon of soda. Stir molasses, sugar and oil together. Add the water, salt, soda, spices and flour (sifted together). Finally, she adds 1 heaping tablespoon of candied orange peel (cut in small pieces) and a cup of seedless raisins. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) for 35 minutes. For the icing—boil a medium sized potato in salt water. When done, mash with plenty of butter and let cool. Work in powdered sugar and lemon juice (2 tbsps). Mix well and spread on gingerbread.

Mrs. Brabble says she makes her potato candy the same way, except she adds more sugar and different kinds of flavorings. This all sounds very good, doesn't it?

The fishing lure works both ways in the fishing business. It lures us away from our work and lures the fish on the hook. Sure wish I was somewhere right now, watching for the cork to disappear.

A backyard picnic is a safe way to celebrate the Fourth of July. Join in with a few neighbors and friends and cook-out.

This past week's exciting election took first place in the news, even from the women's point of view. One of our very own, Snooky (Mrs. Ed) Bond, worked very hard during the campaign for her candidate for Governor and I'm sure all campaigners were as loyal and likeable as Snooky, the race for Governor would have been even tighter than it was. I believe she'd be hard to beat if she ran in the election herself.

We had an interesting fight in our back yard Sunday afternoon. We were sitting on our back porch enjoying the cool breezes, when we heard a commotion up in the tree. We discovered high in the leaves of a pecan tree, a battle royal between a squirrel and a robin. Every time the squirrel moved the robin flew down and strafed him and finally it got to be a sitting marathon of who could out-wait who. Then, too, our dog sat on the grass beneath, waiting for the squirrel to come down. Finally, late in the evening, I saw the poor squirrel, tired and ruffled, leap from a low hanging branch and run through the hedge. The only reason for this affray that we could figure was that the robin was either protecting her young birds or her nest.

Ladies, if you're interested in a "watch your weight" refreshment, serve sold, crisp wedges of watermelon. There are only 120 calories in a 4 by 8 inch slice or about the same as a raw apple or a banana. Yet, watermelon contains a substantial amount of Vitamin A, calcium, ascorbic acid and other valuable nutrients. July and August are the peak months for melons and one watermelon will go a long way in providing desserts and then, too, delicious pickle can be made from the rind. Nothing wasted but the seeds—and some birds get them.

FLYING HIGH—Detroit, Mich.—Eric Olsen's broad grin from his lofty helicopter perch symbolizes the over-the-top mark in General Motors Corp.'s 1964 Operation Security Savings Bond drive which saw 77,000 new names added to GM's Payroll Savings Plan. Nationwide, more than 387,000—nearly 75 percent—of the company's employees now are buying Savings Bonds through payroll deductions, setting a new peacetime record.

Young Eric spotted the Navy "Sea Bat" submarine hunter-killer helicopter and promptly climbed aboard after it had been flown in for the bond drive at the Detroit Diesel Engine Division where his dad, Bob Olsen, superintendent of manufacturing, buys bonds for both himself and Eric.

In the company-wide campaign, conducted in 144 plants and offices across the United States, 107 units attained or exceeded their Savings Bond goals. Sixteen units, including six in the Chevrolet Division, exceeded 90 percent in the sign-up of employees in the Payroll Savings Plan. The Buick Motors Division added 5,469 new bond buyers, while the Gran Blanc unit of the Fisher Body Division topped 98 percent in the bond sign-up campaign.

Spearheading the drive was GM President John F. Cordon, appointed by Treasury Secretary Dillon as chairman for the automotive industry on the U. S. Industrial Payroll Savings Committee. This committee, headed by Frank R. Milliken, President of the Kennecott Copper Corp., consists of 28 of the nation's business and industrial leaders. It has assumed responsibility for organizing industry-wide campaigns to sign up an additional one million new Savings Bond buyers under the Payroll Savings Plan during 1964.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Keating

Now is the perfect time of year to give your varmint rifle a cleaning and turning, advises Pete Brown, Arms Editor of Sports Afield Magazine. The bedding may have changed during the winter, and a tune-up job generally entails several trips to the range. Then, too, if you have a new rifle, there is the problem of getting the most accurate load possible. After finding the right combination for accuracy, a determined varmint hunter is then going to shoot his rifle out to maximum possible range and make up a drop table. Then he is ready.

During June, the half-grown varmints will be venturing out of the hole, but we still don't want to be too hasty. In July the young are capable of going it on their own, and they don't waste any time setting up house-keeping. After a quick look at the real estate, they stake a claim by sinking a new hole in a chunk of it.

As far as rearing young is concerned, the raccoon and rabbit are on about the same schedule as the woodchuck. During May and June it is possible to see young foxes or coyotes near the den areas. In July the young will be learning to hunt mice, rabbits, fruit and insects with the family. In August, most of the family ties will be broken and the young will be on their own. The farmer has good reason to control the fox and coyote population, but it has been generally proved that eradication is not in the farmer's best interest—for the reason that, to a large degree, these predators control rodents.

Of course, crows can be gunned with impunity any time the shooter wants to match wits with them. Regardless of how much crow shooting we indulge in, crows never seem to be over-controlled.

THE HOUSE THAT GREW OUT OF A BOOK!

The book, of course, was a savings bankbook! On its pages was written the "success story" of a family that wanted a home of their own. Each deposit was a chapter that carried the story a bit further along toward its happy ending... the down payment on the home of their dreams. Adding INTEREST, all through the book, was this bank! And this, of course, made the family's savings grow much faster to the total they required. Our interest rate on savings is a liberal...
