

BROAD STREET BULLETIN

By KATE

There's a definite hint of fall in the air—just enough of a hint to make us realize that the wonderful hot, lazy summer days are numbered. For those of us who love the outdoors, the coming of cool and cold weather is sort of like a cloud hanging over. However, with a zest for living, we'll find, as usual, many interesting things to do, such as fishing (September being one of the best fishing months), football games and planting our fall garden. Although it's August, there are many vegetables that can be planted here in the South. Two of these are radishes and lettuce, which come up quickly and are usable within a few weeks after sowing. If by chance that frost should threaten, here is a good way to form your own miniature greenhouse. Cut coat hangers and form them into U's. Stick the ends into the soil like croquet wickets, spacing the U's 18 inches apart. Use discarded plastic bags from dry cleaned garments to stretch over these U frames, thus forming protection for these small vegetables.

While thinking on the subject of gardens, flower beds, etc., it reminds me that now is the time to start that compost pile, which will furnish your garden next spring with the organic matter needed. If started early enough, it can furnish you with the foundation needed for potting soil guaranteed to grow super plants. Use the inedible parts of the vegetables you and your family eat every day, or the dead flowers taken from the vases. A pit can be dug for the compost pile or it can be thrown in an out of the way place in your yard. (Note: Fishing worms will thrive under the compost heap, also).

We had a highly successful fishing trip at Nags Head last Saturday—in the morning. We got there early, not too many people fishing and the spots were biting like mad. When fishing on the piers, you have the experience of meeting many kinds of people, from everywhere. There's just a common denominator there, the love of fishing. Then, too, most of them will help another fisherman out, if the fish on the line is too big or messy (like a skate) or if lines get tangled, they even control their tempers and help untangle them. Meanwhile there's many a whopper of a fish story told about the fish they almost landed. I notice that more and more women are fishing—it's good for the nerves.

I read in the Baltimore fashion news that the bouffant look of yesteryear is out for fall and the "small head" is in. This is the season to let the "natural head" shape show. Some hair stylists call for bangs and other differ with the hair definitely combed off the face. Either way, it will be a relief to see something other than the beehive.

I also read that London's information center is busy passing out names of ear-piercers. New interest in piercing the ears is the wearing of heirloom jewelry. The wearer of the real crown jewels, Queen Elizabeth is said to have pierced ears. (It is NOT a do-it-yourself task).

Did You Know That—
Hot vinegar is good to remove paint from window panes much quicker than razor blades. Serve cheese appetizers on pretzel sticks rather than tooth picks and the sticks can be eaten, too.

When using lemon juice for rust stains, hold the spotted area over the spout of a steaming tea kettle and the spots will disappear like magic.

In order to place a mouse trap in an out of the way or tight place, attach the trap to the end of a yard stick and your problem will be solved.

Walk to where you're going! You'll be surprised at how much you'll see and at how many friendly people you'll meet. Besides, it's good for your mind and body to walk.
