

Rally Planned By Democrats

RALEIGH — State Democratic Chairman, J. Melville Broughton, Jr., announced today that plans were complete for an old fashion democratic rally to be held at the football stadium in Kinston, September 9, at 6:30 P. M., and added, "I am happy to announce that Governor Dan K. Moore has agreed to be the principal speaker on this occasion."

"We are interested in continued democratic activity in the eastern part of North Carolina. Since the Vance-Aycock Dinner is held in Asheville, in the western part of the state, we felt that it was appropriate to have such a rally east of Raleigh. This gives us a balance of activities since the Jefferson-Jackson Dinner is held traditionally in Raleigh."

Chairman Broughton further added that the dinner would consist of barbecue and tickets would be sold for $2.00 each. This is not a fund raising affair but an occasion for all democrats to get together.

Original plans for the affair were made for September 17, however, conflicts made this impossible. County chairmen and vice chair-

Robert Inglis Completes Test

Robert Inglis has passed the Red Cross Intermediate Swimming Test. So what? He's only seven.

Mrs. Sheila V. Theiss, a veteran swimming instructor, said young Robert is the youngest swimmer she has ever passed in this classification.

Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Inglis, is definitely the youngest swimmer in Chowan County to pass the demanding test. It consists of a five minute continuous swim, 100 yards selected stroke, diving, underwater swimming and distance swimming using the back stroke and breast stroke.

"On behalf of the local chapter of the American Red Cross and myself, I would like to sincerely thank the parents who thought it important to see that their child learn to swim or improve his present skills," Mrs. Theiss said. "Without their cooperation and interest we would not have been able to reach the more than 500 children that have participated some time this summer in a Red Cross program."

"Again, my thanks and it has been a pleasure working with your children."
