Senior Citizens Are Being Aided

"A basic goal of an enlightened society must be to provide opportunities which enable older people to keep and strengthen their independence and dignity."

With those words, President Lyndon B. Johnson proclaimed May as Senior Citizens Month.

The Consumer and Marketing Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Public Welfare have invited local senior citizens to inquire during May about the food stamp program—as part of the national senior citizens month observance.

In cooperation with the national observance of senior citizens month, the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service has joined the State Board of Public Welfare in urging senior citizens in Chowan County to inquire about assistance under the food stamp program. Frequently, the Consumer and Marketing Service points out, senior citizens find that they are eligible to take part in the food assistance program.

The two agencies say that many persons, who after retirement, are forced to live on reduced incomes, often are eligible to take part in the food stamp program. The program is designed to aid low-income families.

The program enables participants whose income is within certain specified levels to buy more and better food for the same amount of money they usually spend on food. The only difference is food stamp coupons are used instead of cash to pay for food.

The food coupons may be used to buy food at any local retail food store authorized by the Consumer and Marketing Service. Most of the stores in the local food stamp program area are authorized to accept the food coupons.
