

BROAD STREET BULLETIN

Kate

People always seem more cheerful
In the early morning hours
Than they do in early evening
When their bones and minds are tired.

If they'd only sit still and try to relax
Maybe the kinks would get out of their backs;
They would be more cheerful in spite of the day
And nicer to be with in every way.

Although the wind blew and it rained "up a storm," we journeyed to Nags Head this past weekend, not to fish primarily, but to visit relatives from Washington who are spending several weeks at the beach. But, of course, we HAD to fish a little while and even though the waves were high and the sea rough, we caught about a dozen nice sized spots, which we cleaned and ate immediately. Now that was good eatin'.

baby clothes, bathing suits and even high-fashion "fur" coats.

A Frenchman recently revealed he had made a killing with the following news paper ad: "What every girl should know—frank, concise—fully illustrated. A MUST for every young girl contemplating marriage. Sent under plain cover." What the girl received was an illustrated cookbook.

There's something to say for the short, short skirts—it does away with the waistline. Not since the roaring twenties has the waistline seemed so out of fashion. With skirts settling at the knee, the natural waist line falls just about midway, a very awkward proportion.

One of the cutest animals I've seen recently is a small goat or a kid, I suppose, is the proper name, at the home of Dr. L. A. Dees, local veterinarian. Mrs. Dees raised this small animal with a baby bottle and they are enjoying having Nanny as a pet. Wearing collar with small bell, Nanny is a playful pet—but alas it will not be long before she'll try to literally eat them out of house and home.

Disposable paper clothes have come into their own this year and you may soon be able to have an entire disposable wardrobe. Having worked out the "bugs" in paper materials, such as making them reasonably resistant to water and fire, manufacturers are now considering them for use in many ways. Due this fall: aprons, dresses, underwear.

And while on the subject of pets, some friends of ours have a boxer who is getting old and quite "doty." Our friends claim that their boxer can understand their conversation, so they have to spell out their words.

Seems to me that there should be something done about the excess noises of heavy trucks and cars, not to mention Hondas, which pass through the town. It is impossible to hold a conversation sometimes because of the thunder of these vehicles. I'm wondering if all this noise is really necessary.

Glimpses

After the heavy rain last Friday, I saw two little girls wading along the street in the water, having such a good time. Reminded me how we did the same thing when we were little.

Many folks, townspeople and strangers, fishing along the green, from the county dock and near the bridges—catching fish. I can vouch for that. That's good, for you just don't worry when you're catching fish.

Household Hints

Delicately sweetened and flavor whipped cream by adding a bit of sherry or port wine.

Cut flowers will live longer if they are placed in a metal bowl which keeps them cooler.

Dry baking soda applied with a damp sponge will remove stains from plastic dinnerware.

Beauty Hint: Smooth a bit of cool milk under the eyes to relieve tiredness temporarily.

Ladies! An upside down teacup makes an excellent hand rest when giving yourself a manicure.

Solid colors in clothes are more slimming than patterns or prints.

When polishing windows rub up and down on one side and horizontally on the other side. When streaks show up, you'll know whether they're inside or out.

Autos Damaged In Local Wreck

A two-car collision on West Queen Street resulted in damage of $500 but no one was seriously injured.

James F. Flanagan, Alabania, was driving a 1962 Ford which was in collision with a 1966 Ford operated by Michael E. Overton, 23 Westover.

Police records show Flanagan had backed out of a driveway and the Overton vehicle was headed east. The Flanagan car crossed the yellow line into the path of the oncoming vehicle.

Flanagan was charged with a safety violation and driving on the left side of the road.

Hollowell's Car Located Monday

A 1966 Corvair, stolen in Edenton last Wednesday, was located Monday on a Jacksonville street.

E. L. Hollowell, owner of the car, reported to Edenton Police Department that the vehicle was stolen from Edenton Baptist Church while he was attending mid-week services.

While the car had been driven more than 500 miles it was not damaged. Some personal items had been taken.

JAYCETTES MEETING

The Edenton Jaycettes will hold their regular monthly meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7 o'clock at Edenton Restaurant.

Come gentlemen, we sit too long on trifles. And waste the time which looks for other reveals. —Shakespeare.
