The pleasure of having memories
When those we love are gone,
Though happy times have ended,
Their memory lingers on.

If I can keep remembering all the happy times in my childhood and young adult life for which my Mother was largely responsible, I will not be too sad because she is gone. Beside the many material things she and Daddy gave me, there were many other wonderful gifts, such as a delightful sense of humor, the love of reading and especially the enjoyment of poetry. I can remember, too, all her reminders on conduct and behavior, such as "neither borrower nor lender be," "make haste slowly," "a good name is rather to be chosen than great riches," and many other axioms by which she lived. I am glad for all the memories of my Mother and our loss seems almost too much to bear — but she is now through suffering and is released to God.

One important thing we always receive from a trip to Yankeeland is the great appreciation of living in the South — we're always so glad to come home.

We're approaching the time, the deadline when it behooves us to "render unto Caesar" all that is required. This is when, as we're reporting our income tax, when also we can take stock of our own budget and see our own discrepancies. At least, now at this time, we really know what we have and do not have and can try to manage accordingly. Then perhaps next year the commitment of income tax won't seem so insurmountable.

There's always something good even during the blackest of our moods, and this week I found so much for which to be thankful. It is the kindness and consideration of friends which has come to me in my grief. I know of nothing more valuable than the expressions and understanding of friendship, and I am truly grateful.

Remember . . .
Doctors say that a hearty laugh is a good physical and mental tonic, because it fills the lungs with extra oxygen and stretches more than 50 muscles. (Frowning uses only 30 muscles).

Simple exercises for tired feet; After removing shoes, roll a beverage can forward and backward with the bottom of your feet — good for your arches.

For tastier rice, add a beef or chicken bouillon cube to the cooking water.

When wrapping a package for mailing, put a drop or two of nail polish on the knots of the cord. This will keep them tight and the package more secure.

To clean a glass cooking utensil on which food has been burned, don't scour it. Fill with a solution of baking soda and water and let stand.

Try using tooth paste on a clean cloth to remove stain from plastic utensils. Cut flowers or plants can get overheated or chilled just like people. Keep cool as possible, but away from fans or air conditioners.

The fiber of Americanism lies in the helpful spirit of neighbors found in small towns.

No true religion rests upon the assumption that everyone else is wrong and going to hell.
