A LIFT FOR TODAY

Men ought always to pray and not to faint.—Luke 18:1.

We can pray without getting tired for God will not place us in a more difficult position than he will give us power to manage and he will not forsake us.

May we remember, Our Father, that when Thy children pray together our prayers will be heard and answered according to Thy grace and wisdom.

Consumers Beware

If you have ever taken a load of wheat, ground it into flour, added various ingredients for special purposes, put in a little salt, water, yeast, perhaps some vitamin concentrate, worked the resulting dough, let it rise into loaves, and then baked it in an oven to make a loaf of bread, you would quickly see the reason for the spread between farm prices and the cost of finished food products.

One senator has made the suggestion that labels on food products should state the value of farm-produced ingredients to make consumers aware of the difference between the retail price and what the farmer receives for the basic raw material. The only trouble is that both farm prices and retail prices are constantly shifting according to the changing relationships between supply, demand and competition. Grocery clerks would be spending practically all their time pasting new labels on their merchandise. Consumers would really be confused, farmers would not receive any more, and retail prices would go up to cover the cost of label changing.

As The Wall Street Journal observes, "Like so many consumer-oriented schemes designed to be informational, this could only be less a help than an unintentional hindrance."

Not For Us!

There is a classic wisecrack to the effect that the most enjoyable things in life are either illegal, immoral or fattening. And ever since the dawn of civilization there have been people trying to do something about this situation. Lawmakers and law enforcers, princes and priests have tried to curb human cussedness, and in more recent years doctors and dietitians have lent a helping hand to the people who help themselves to too much.

All of which is as it should be. After all, there are limits.

But there are other limits, too. That is, in how much regulating the human animal is expected to take. We had one example of excessive government meddling, in the 18th Amendment that gave us prohibition, but the same mentality is still in evidence. Its most recent achievement was the ruling by the Federal Communications Commission that the broadcasting media must balance tobacco advertising with anti-smoking messages.

This seems to be another of those foot-in-the-door moves by our Great Bureaucracy. At present the bureaucrats are aiming only at radio and TV, but give them a little time and they'll get around to magazines and newspapers. And, frankly, we wouldn't like to be compelled to publish a handout from Big Brother designed to counteract some cigarette advertising in the same issue. It reminds us that this is the way Castro did things when he came to power. Cuban papers were obliged to run official "explanations" at the end of news stories the bearded one didn't like.

Nor would that be the end of it. With the principle established, we would almost certainly be called upon to conduct other "educational" campaigns. Is beer or hard liquor offered in the advertising columns? Here are some appropriate anti-drinking measures to dress up the editorial columns. Just like the old Anti-Saloon League and the WCTU used to dispense. Do local grocers advertise fattening foods? Then see to it that equal space is given to reducing diets.

Then, of course, there would be records. All sorts. In quadruplicate. Bureaucracy being what it is we can just visualize all the forms we'd have to send to Washington to let Big Brother know we were conforming, completely, abjectly, and without reservation.

Well, as the saying goes, that'll be the day!

Why is it that the truth is so painful sometimes?

Heard & Seen

"By Buff"

Our co-worker, Wilborne Harrell, was expected to be brought home from Norfolk General Hospital Tuesday of this week, but he developed a fever and possible infection, so that he is still "vacationing" in the hospital as this is written. Quite a few people have inquired about Wilborne and we've been very happy to tell 'em he's getting along fine. I talked to him on the phone Sunday night and he said it was the first day he had not had any pain. However, apparently Wilborne is not so favorably impressed with the way he was given nourishment. When one of his friends was visiting him, he said he was sort of hungry. "Why, you're getting nourishment right now," said the friend, pointing to the glucose being administered. "Yes," said Wilborne, "but I like to taste the food going into my stomach." Anyway, Wilborne mustered up enough strength to write his column for this week's issue of The Herald while propped up in bed.

Mrs. Elizabeth Gregg, who lives at the Athol House on the base, spends quite a little time visiting relatives, but on a recent return home she found she had some "visitors" even though she was not at home. The "visitors" were a few snakes who seemed right at home but to say the least were not at all welcome despite Mrs. Gregg's friendly and congenial disposition. It didn't take her long to have her home inspected, so that she is now free of the "visitors". She was told the snakes were not poisonous but she, like me, thinks a snake is a snake and didn't want to be friendly with 'em. And who blames her!

I saw in a paper the other day that a fellow has about the same trouble I have in trying to raise tomatoes. In the article this fellow says that about the time the plants are blooming and small tomatoes begin to appear, the stalks begin to wilt and turn yellow at a rapid pace, so that very few tomatoes are realized. I've had the same trouble for about three years now and it looks as though they're going to do the same this year. In fact, I'm "regusted" and plan to give up "farming". Hope some of my friends do not have the same trouble, for here's one who really likes home-grown tomatoes.

We've had company at our house for over a week now in the person of my father-in-law, F. S. Kline from Hagerstown, Md. Some men (and women) don't get along so well with in-laws, but that's one complaint I've never had any occasion to register. The only trouble with the one now visiting us is that he likes to fish, but don't fish our way. He don't fish where we tell him, he don't put on bait the way we do and he tangles up his lines too darned much. But the biggest trouble is that just about every time we've taken him fishing, he caught more fish than I did. He'll be going back to Hagerstown Thursday and I'd like to hear the fish stories he tells his friends back in his home town.

And speaking about fishing, quite a few Edenton people run down to Nags Head to try their luck. Anne Jenkins and Mamie Parker had a "field day" Sunday down there, and they didn't have to tell anybody that they were at the beach — their sun-burned faces was proof enough that they did not spend the day at home. And speaking about fishing on the Nags Head piers, it's sort of a gamble. Take for instance E. L. Hollowell. The Missus, her daddy and I went down Saturday and for a spell we caught spots galore. E. L. had been at one of the other piers, but the fish were not biting at all. He decided to come to the pier where we were fishing, but got there at just about the time the spots knocked off. So a fellow hardly knows what to do sometimes.

will be available. There will be unicom radio service for incoming and outgoing aircraft and phone and rent-a-car service will soon be available.

Adams said there are four operational runways available with adjacent taxiways.

Adams, vice president of the corporation, is a veteran pilot who earned the Distinguished Flying Cross and three air medals while flying with the Marines in World War II. He will be available for part-time flying on weekends.

Meads, corporation president, has 10 years of flying experience and operates a crop dusting business in Pasquotank County. He is a licensed commercial pilot and crop duster.

Edenton Municipal Airport has had no service for aircraft since the base was closed by the military several years ago.

Youth Fellowship

"Face the Music", a new teenage dramatic film spectacular, will be shown Saturday, June 24, at 8 P. M., in the Edenton Armory. It is sponsored by the Christian Youth Fellowship of Edenton and Chowan County.

The Christian Youth Fellowship of Edenton and Chowan County is an interdenominational organization established with the young people of the area to promote a Gospel emphasis once per month through the summer of 1967. The first such emphasis will be Saturday night. All the youth of the area and their families are invited. Rev. Hubert Morris serves as coordinator of the organization.

"Face the Music" tells the story of Sid Fox, trumpeter and leader of a night club combo, whose pathway to stardom is lined with failure. Sid, through deception, becomes a member of an outstanding traveling music group. He soon falls in love with "Candy", the beautiful blonde soloist, who until Sid's arrival had shown real interest in "Chuck" whose broad shoulders and bulging muscles spelled star athlete.

Geared to modern American teenagers, this motion picture lays bare the materialistic phoniness that is characteristic of many people today — but it doesn't stop there! In language that teenagers understand, "Face the Music" presents definite answers to the most important questions they face.

Filed in beautiful Eastman color, "Face the Music" is a production with a story which will be understood and enjoyed by the whole family.

The Public Parade

spacious swimming pool. The private club will be able now to offer something to the non-golfing families and the pool makes it into a true country club.

Tom Hopkins has been the driving force behind the new pool which is located on the banks of the Albemarle Sound. He was given special, and well deserved recognition at a formal dance held Saturday night.

The airport and country club join with other facilities to make this a well-balanced community. Right now we are trying to get our business organized so we can enjoy some of this balance.

So It Says

The story in a Wednesday morning paper reads:

"KINSTON—Lenoir voters Tuesday approved a $7,775,000 bond issue for construction of a new county hospital."

What it didn't say, but which is equally as factual, is that Lenoir County isn't without the services of a surgeon. We are in Chowan.

Isn't it about time the hospital supporters along The Public Parade started giving out information which might change a few minds about the need of additional hospital facilities here?

time, which indicates the dire need of a hospital for Chowan County, both for short term patients as well as long term patients which have been turned away almost every week.

Jones also announced that Miss Sandra Hare, a recent graduate of Chowan College, has joined the nursing staff. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Worth H. Hore.

Jesse L. Harrell, president of the board, stated that a site committee to select the location for a new hospital has been appointed. He said this group consists of people from every section of the county.

The board has authorized an architect to make schematic drawings in preparation for a bond election which will be held this fall to build a new hospital.

The Diplomatic Pouch

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The following letters were recently answered by the Department of State.

For something which I am writing for publication I need to know the date on which the delegates from Massachusetts signed the Constitution. I also need to know their names.

H. D. E.
Skowhegan, Maine.

Dear Mr. E.:
The delegates from Massachusetts who signed the Constitution were Nathaniel Gorham and Rufus King. The date of signing was September 17, 1787.

Judge Hears Liquor Case

A Negro woman was given a suspended prison sentence in District Court here Tuesday after being convicted of possessing untaxed liquor and possessing it for the purpose of sale.

Judge W. S. Privott ordered Louise Holley, 128 East Albemarle Street, not to be convicted of illegal possession of liquor for a period of five years or she would have to serve the 18-month sentence.

The jurist then ordered that eight pints of legal liquor be returned to the defendant.

She was also ordered to pay a fine of $150 and court costs.

Edenton police arrested the woman after a raid on her home at 10:30 P. M., May 18. They testified that there had been an unusual amount of traffic around the house and they had information that she was in the liquor business. Several gallons of untaxed liquor, taken in the raid, was ordered destroyed.

Otis Welch was sentenced to a total of four years in prison after Judge Privott convicted him on two counts of assault. He was charged with assaulting his wife with a belt and his mother-in-law, Vessie Holley, with a knife.

In companion cases, Vessie Holley, Vanderbilt Holley and Isham Holley were all found not guilty of assaulting Welch.

Judge Privott found probably cause in the case where Charles H. Sleeman was charged with auto larceny. The case was sent to Superior Court and Sleeman's bond was set at $1,000.

Other cases called by Solicitor Wilton Walker included:

Ira Franklin Smith, Jr., reckless driving, 30 days, suspended upon payment of $35 fine and costs.

Raleigh Ashley, driving drunk, four months, suspended upon payment of $100 fine and costs. Notice of appeal given and bond set at $100.

Eddie Wayne Nixon, traffic violation, 10 days, suspended upon payment of $10 fine and costs.

Charlie Herman Copeland, assault on a female, 60 days, suspended upon payment of $10 fine and costs.

Ulysses Leary, speeding 90 miles per hour, 90 days, suspended upon payment of $100 fine and costs. A case of resisting arrest was not prossed.

Herbert Coffield, assault with a deadly weapon, 12 months suspended and placed on probation for two years. Ordered to pay $25 fine and costs and pay medical bills of James A. Leary.

James Willie Bryson, no operator's license, not pros.

Clyde Leary, Sr., assault on a female, called and failed.

Ernest Brown, forcible trespass, not guilty.

Walter M. Baker, reckless driving, not guilty.

N. J. George, unlawful taking of a motor vehicle, not guilty.

John Edward Nowell, damage to personal property, 30 days, suspended upon payment of costs and make restitution to Wayne Hare.
