I give myself a "talking to".
When things get a little bit rough,
And then I talk to God sometimes
And if that's not enough,
I listen for Him to speak to me.
He gives me an answer. I can clearly see.

Sometimes we're so busy talking and asking things of God that we don't have the patience to listen and wait. I suppose that as we mature we gain more patience—it's all in God's plan.

I've heard it said that anyone who plants a plant or sows a seed still has hope for the future. So, maybe that's what we all should do when everything seems useless and hopeless. Which reminds me, that even though Buff had great hope for his tomatoes this year, it seems, like always, they're turning yellow before maturing. It's very discouraging to him.

I am just finishing some corn on the cob which I put in the freezer last summer and it still is delicious. Heretofore, the corn which I had frozen became watery, but last year, after blanching it for the freezer, I rolled each ear in a paper towel to absorb excess moisture and sure enough, it helped very much. This year, if I can get it, I will try freezing more sweet corn, my favorite vegetable.

Every child should know the happiness of having a grandmother nearby and every grandmother should be able to have her grandchild to hold close and spoil once in a while. Alas for me, they're so far away. However, I'm still hoping that before long, at least one of them will be here and wouldn't it be wonderful to have them both?

Our friend, Wilborne Harrell is still hospitalized, much to his sorrow and to our understanding and sympathy. Doctors and hospitals are really gifts of God to heal, but then one can get very discouraged at times. Hearing from friends is a big help, in fact it will speed up recuperation, so why not drop Wilborne a card to Memorial Hospital at Chapel Hill? Here is a bit of philosophy of an unknown writer—it could be someone like Wilborne: "Give me work to do; give me health; give me joy in simple things. Give me an eye for beauty, a tongue for truth, a heart that loves, a mind that reasons, a sympathy that understands. Give me neither malice or envy, but a true kindness and a noble common sense. And at the close of each day, give me a book and a friend with whom I can commune in silence."
