

WOODLAND CONTEST—The photos show contestants in the recent woodland contest working on typical test sites. The contest was held Thursday at Camp Cale.

Contest Won By Perquimans

Contestants worked on test sites at the eighth annual Albemarle FFA Woodland Clinic held last Thursday at Camp Cale. Seven schools from the area competed for top honors and prize money.

Perquimans High School won first place and received a check for $20. They also had the individual high scorer, Bruce Winslow, who received a $5 prize. Gates High School placed second for a $15 award and Camden High School third for $10.

The event is sponsored annually by the Albemarle Soil and Water Conservation District with the cooperation of the vocational agriculture teachers, the N. C. Forest Service, Union Camp Corporation and Jones Lumber Company.

The forest service selects the test sites and supervises the event. The prize money is donated by Union Camp Corporation and Jones Lumber Company.

Willard Copeland, district supervisor from Perquimans County and chairman of the Woodland Clinic, states that the type of training received from a contest such as this is very beneficial to the boys participating. The vocational agriculture teachers also speak highly of the event.

Blair Stutzman, representative of Union Camp Corporation, emphasized the importance of proper woodland management. He also commented on the increasing demands for wood products and the job opportunities available to young men in the field of forestry. He brought to the attention of the group that aerial seeding on a given size tract was done free of charge after all land preparation had been done.

Stutzman noted that, of course, several reservations were involved in this type of operation. The winner of this event will have an opportunity to participate in the newly formed state woodland contest slated for a later date.

Students Take PSAT

Juniors from John A. Holmes and Chowan High School who plan to attend college should definitely take the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test (PSAT). This test will be administered on October 25 at the John A. Holmes High School cafeteria at 8:45 A. M. The test will be administered at Chowan High School on October 21, during the school day.

The PSAT is a two-hour version of the Scholastic Aptitude Test. The test is designed to measure verbal and mathematical ability necessary for academic success in college. The test can give a student information about his ability to do college work, help him make college plans and assist in choosing his high school subjects next year. It will also give a student an idea of what to expect on the SAT.

The test will cost $1.50 and a student must sign up in his homeroom to take the test. Those who plan to take the test will receive a Bulletin of Information to aid in explanation of the test.

You can still make many friends by speaking nicely about people.

Jones Is Given Post In Northeastern Area

RALEIGH—J. C. Jones, head of extension forest management at N. C. State University, has been appointed chairman of the Northeastern administrative district of the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

A county and state extension worker for 21 years, Jones will have immediate supervisory responsibilities for the county extension staffs in the 14 northeastern-most counties of North Carolina. His appointment is effective November 1.

Dr. George Hyatt, Jr., director of agricultural extension at NCSU, said Jones would replace E. L. Norton, who retired recently.

"J. C. Jones has worked closely with county extension agents in his role as an extension forestry specialist," Hyatt said. "He is familiar with their work and many of their day to day problems. We feel he will make an excellent district chairman."

A native of Bennett in Chatham County, Jones attended Mars Hill College and received the B.S. degree in forestry from NCSU in 1946. He also holds a master of science degree from Duke University.

He was with the U. S. Forest Service briefly before becoming an extension specialist in Nashville and Windsor. He resigned in 1952 for a position with Halifax Paper Company, Smithfield, but returned to extension in 1957 as forest management specialist. He became head of the management section in 1960.

Jones served in combat as a naval officer during World War II and currently holds the rank of captain in the Naval Reserve. He is active in Navy Underwater Demolition Teams, diving and parachuting.

He is a member of the N. C. Forestry Association, Society of American Foresters, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Masons and Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity. He is on the board of deacons of the West Raleigh Presbyterian Church.

Mr and Mrs. Jones, the former Jean Lytch, have three sons and reside in Raleigh.

A Thought to Remember

By MARVIN BARRAM

What is the price of victory? Now, there is an age-old question for us to ponder.

It is said that Robert Louis Stevenson became a master of English by writing some of his pieces nine times over. The manuscript pages of Tennyson's poems sometimes have fifty corrections on a single sheet. Goethe took a lifetime to write "Faust" and half a lifetime to write Wilhelm Meister.

To be aware of the efforts of these men in achieving their greatness teaches us one thing—everything has a price on it.

Without patience—it can't be accomplished. The life that spurns effort is without results and accomplishments. In other words—if you will pay the price you may have it.

The skillful surgeon became so because he paid the price of preparation. The artist paints because he painfully learned draftsmanship . . . on and on we could go—they all paid the price.

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: "Victory is never won by the sluggard."
