On motion of J. Clarence Leary, seconded by C. M. Evans and duly carried that the resolution be adopted and forwarded to the district office in Ahoskie.

The Commissioners discussed the jail inspector's report. The inspector was most concerned with a fire hazard of wooden rafters and having no division for sexes, first offenders or medical cases. Beds upstairs are not safety proof, could be torn apart and used for weapons. Commissioner Phillips will investigate cost of a sprinkler system.

District Highway Commissioner Joe Nowell appeared before the board. He noted that Chowan County's allocation would be $29,000 this year for secondary road construction. Also that criteria for getting a road on the state system has changed from four to five houses per mile. Access roads to Chris Craft and Camp Manufacturing Company were brought under discussion. The Commissioners asked for support or request for funds for access road to the new hospital. The state at present does not plan to curb and gutter these roads. He said the by-pass was scheduled within two years but he hoped to get started earlier. Highway 17 is now competing with 13 and the area must stick together in order to keep tourist traffic on 17.

Civil Defense Director Murray Ashley announced a Local Government Civil Defense meeting at the Municipal Building on October 21. He requested the Commissioners to attend and asked for communications equipment.

Upon motion of C. M. Phillips and duly carried that Murray Ashley be allowed $150 on equipment.

A letter was read from Perquimans County Commissioners requesting adoption of a resolution if Chowan is interested in a district jail. The Commissioners could see no advantage in a district jail and did not look favorably on one.

A request was made by Lem Cahoon, Commissioner from Tyrrell County, to allow their prisoners to be kept in our jail. Commissioner Phillips seemed to think it would add too many problems. If adding that service is permissible by Social Services Department, then we will take another look at it.

Chairman Bond urged Board members to attend a meeting on the 1-cent sales tax referendum Tuesday, October 7, at 10 A. M. at the Municipal Building.

The following reports were accepted and ordered filed:

Civil Defense; County Accountant; Rescue Squad; Director of Social Services; Fire Department; Agriculture and Economics Department; Veterans' Service Officer; Tax Collector and Coroner.

There being no further business, the meeting was adjourned.

W. E. BOND, Chairman.
BERTHA B. BUNCH, Clerk to the Board.

WHY A ONE CENT

Taxes? Yes, I pay taxes just as you do on income, property, gasoline and sales tax on purchases. Since I am a public employee I am paid from tax funds but I pay my part.

County and City government is a business, a business of the citizens, run by officials we people elected to do the job. We expect these officials to give us the services we need and want. It takes money to pay for these services.

We need and want a clean, progressive county and town for the best living possible. Good living means good health, schools, streets, water and sewage and many other advantages. These are not just for property owners but also for non-property owners as well.

At present, the main source of income to pay for our county and city needs and wants is property taxes. Why shouldn't all of us, property owners and non-property owners, join together in helping pay the bill?

I suggest that every voting citizen give this careful consideration. The additional sales tax of one cent may eventually lower property taxes some. But, if it doesn't lower property taxes it should tend to keep the burden from getting heavier. It will also help spread the burden to all of us.

Think this over very carefully and on November 4 cast your vote as you think best for all of our people.

read by government heads the world over, creating its own influence on tomorrow's news.

As the world struggled with its problems, Talese exposes that within the Times was its own power struggle. He reveals intimately the lives of the owners, executives, newsmen and even copyboys.

The book gives insights into the creating and reporting of news rarely offered the daily readers of newspapers.

Talese states in the Author's Notes that he wanted to write: "A human history of an institution in transition, a book that would tell more about the men who report the news than the news they report, a factual story about several generations of Timesmen and the interplay within those generations, the internal scenes and confrontations and adjustments that are a part of the vitality and growth of any enduring institution."

Talese accomplished his purpose well. The only criticism is the length of the book, 526 pages, created primarily by some repetition of information about individuals.

Tips And Tricks

The French-cuffed soft ruffly blouses fashion-conscious girls favor today call for cuff links in a romantic mood. Here are some tricks for making your own. Look for out-of-the-ordinary shank buttons with enameled designs or filigree patterns. Link two together, about 1/2 inch apart, using doubled extra-strong button or carpet thread. Strengthen the thread link between the buttons by winding more thread over it, then knot the ends. Another cute link idea is to thread narrow embroidered ribbon through the shank of a pretty button. Insert button in underside of cuff and bring ribbon through to outer side of cuff. Then tie a perky bow.
