

TOP HEAVY!

MORE THAN DOLLARS ARE NEEDED

We have come a long way since the little Red School House was the universal seat of learning. We spend billions on schools and equipment... modern buildings in park-like surroundings... for teachers bedecked with high-sounding, impressive degrees... for school psychologists, counselors, nurses and other professional aides.

With only 6 per cent of the world's population and about one-third of its developed resources, we Americans now invest annually in education almost as much as all other nations combined.

In the past two decades, public school enrollment nearly doubled but the number of school employees tripled and financial support (in constant dollars) increased 350 per cent. Yet many educators, bemoaning the plight of today's schools, claim lack of money is the root of the problem.

But do vast expenditures alone automatically guarantee a good education for our children? In a recent speech, Roger A. Freeman, a special assistant to President Nixon, cited evidence to the contrary. He quoted a survey by James S. Coleman of Johns Hopkins University which found that "the physical and economic resources going into a school had very little relationship to the achievements coming out of it."

A detailed study of New York City schools showed reading and arithmetic achievement in some high-expenditure schools was well below that in schools with the lowest expenditures. The survey found little relationship between student achievement and such factors as class size, condition of buildings, teacher experience.

The school must provide a good education for the child. Just spending billions of taxpayers' money is no adequate substitute for tangible achievements. We must resolve to find the right answer without sacrificing our children to the experimentalists but rather by assuring them a sound education.

As Mr. Freeman points out, the belief in the educational magic of the dollar dies hard, particularly in legislative halls. It's up to citizens everywhere to demand more education for the dollar rather than more dollars for education.

WORLD'S CHAMPION PEANUT GROWER SAYS: "MY LILLISTON ENABLES ME TO PICK OVER 30,000 POUNDS OF PEANUTS A DAY"

E. W. Evans, Coma, N. C., produced history's highest recorded acre-yield of 6,059 pounds of peanuts in 1959. Here's what he says about the machine that helped him do it.

"I like my Lilliston 1500 Peanut Combine better than any machine I've ever seen. It's a high capacity combine which enables me to pick an average of over 30,000 pounds of peanuts a day. My Lilliston is a clean-picking combine, too, and gets all the nuts off the vines—even in tough conditions. And it's the most trouble-free machine I've ever used."
