

Representative May Handle S.S. Affairs

By Lee Wallis
Field Representative
While most people handle their Social Security affairs themselves, you have a right to be represented by a person of your choice in any business you might have with Social Security. Your representative may be an attorney or any other person you choose, such as a relative or friend. If you wish to appoint someone as your representative you must write to Social Security and have the appointment approved.

This is done for the beneficiary's protection. A special form for this purpose is available at any Social Security office.

We will work with your representative just as we would with you.

Your representative may act for you on most Social Security matters and any notice or request sent to your representative has the same effect as if sent to you. However, Social Security has certain rules for representation, designed primarily to protect people from being taken advantage of.

For example, we must approve your representative's fee, and it is illegal for the representative to charge or collect an unauthorized fee.

Your representative cannot sign your application for benefits, except under very special circumstances.

Also, the first check cannot be mailed to the address of the representative unless it is also your address.

Most people who use a representative in dealing with Social Security do so for the purpose of appealing some decision or action.

Almost any decision made on your Social Security claim can be appealed, and the appeal may be carried all the way to the Federal courts.

If past due benefits are payable and your representative is an attorney, the agency may pay part of your benefits with our approval.

Also, if your case goes to the Federal Court, the court may assign a reasonable fee to your attorney past-due benefits.

We have a booklet called "Social Security and Your Right To Representation" that may be helpful to you if you are considering having someone represent you.

You may telephone any Social Security office for a copy of this booklet.

The Elizabeth City Social Security office is located at 111 Jordan Plaza, next to Southgate Mall (phone 338-2161) and is open 9:00 to 4:30 weekdays.

Do not refrigerate eggplant, rutabagas, hard-rind squashes and sweet potatoes; they should be stored at 60 degrees. If these vegetables must be kept at room temperature, use them within a week.

A whole new concept in cooking

Conventional cooking, a stay-clean, power-vented oven, and authentic Char-Flavor indoor grilling... all in one compact unit that vents itself. See the Jenn-Air Savory Centre Combination.
