

Federally Funded State Officials Visit Training School

N. C. Labor Commissioner John C. Brooks and other Department of Labor officials visited Manteo and Elizabeth City on Wednesday to review the Wanchese Harbor Marine Crafts Skill Training Program.

The federally-funded skill training program, co-sponsored by the N. C. Labor Department, College of the Albemarle, the N. C. Employment Security Commission and several private employers in Northeastern North Carolina, is currently providing classroom training to a total of 54 persons in four skill areas: air-conditioning, heating and refrigeration installation and maintenance, electrical installation and maintenance, marine mechanics and welding.

Marine mechanics studying diesel, hydraulic and outboard motor mechanics are in classroom training at the Marine Resource Center in Manteo. The remaining 39 trainees are enrolled in classroom training in Elizabeth City. Labor Department officials will make visits to classroom sites in Manteo and Elizabeth City.

In addition, while in the Manteo area, the commissioner and other officials will visit two boat builders in Wanchese--Roanoke Island Steel and Boat Works, Inc. owned by Carl Bock, Jr., and Davis Boat Works owned by Buddy Davis. Bock and Davis are two of the 11-member Apprenticeship Committee for the Wanchese Harbor Marine Crafts Program. The skill training program, funded under Title

III of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), began March 19, and will provide 12 months of classroom training and six months of apprenticeship training with private employers in the area. While CETA's involvement with the Wanchese Harbor Marine Crafts Skill Training Program ends at the beginning of the second six months of apprenticeship, the apprentices will continue apprenticeship training for approximately two and one-half years.

The program provides allowances, transportation, child care, medical insurance, and residential support to the trainees, five of whom are female. All trainees had to meet CETA eligibility criteria for income and unemployment.

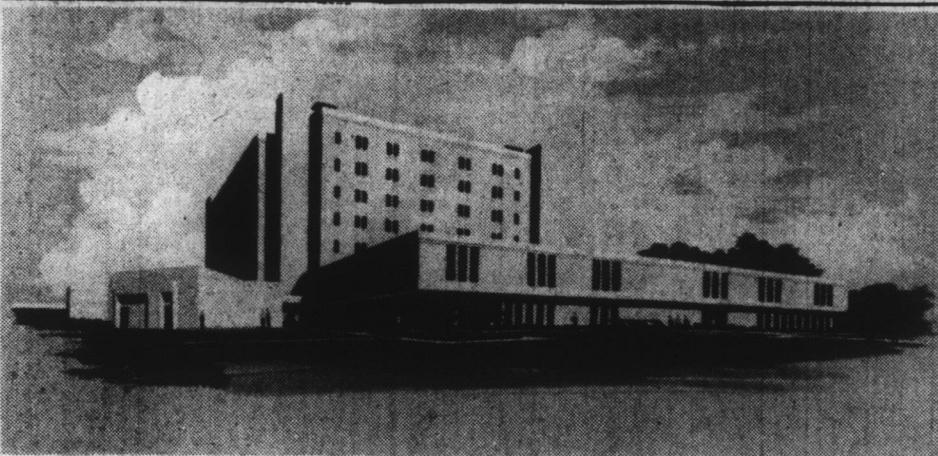

Trainees are residents of seven northeastern counties--Camden, Currituck, Dare, Hyde, Pasquotank, Perquimans and Tyrrell. Local Job Services assisted in the recruiting, screening and testing of applicants. Final selections were made by the Wanchese Harbor Marine Crafts Apprenticeship Committee comprised of private employers and representatives from College of the Albemarle, the Labor Department and the Employment Security Commission.

The goals of the Wanchese Harbor Marine Crafts program are to insure that local residents participate in the benefits arising from the seafood industrial park which is being developed at Wanchese Harbor. The best way to make sure the residents of northeastern North Carolina receive project benefits is by equipping them with the skills to service and maintain the seafood park and the commercial fishing boats. Not only does this training project equip people with high skills through a combination of classroom training and a formal apprenticeship program, but it should serve to lessen Northeastern North Carolina's dependency on the Norfolk, Virginia area for skilled marine maintenance work.

IIC GRADUATES — Fifteen students received their high school diplomas and general educational development certificates during a graduation ceremony which was held Friday evening at College of the Albemarle's Individualized Instruction Center at Swain Elementary School. Not present were Thomas Jones, Lois Gilliam, and Edith Wood. (COA Photo).

BUILDING NAMED — The East Carolina University School of Medicine's new educational facility has been named the Brody Medical Science Building in recognition of the family's support of the developing medical school. The ECU Board of Trustees voted to name the building after it was announced that the Brody family was given $1.5-million to the ECU Medical Foundation. The Brody family is from Greenville and Kinston. (ECU Medical School Photo).

IN MEMORY OF OLIVER E. DAIL 1979

I thought I would pass this writing up, Being I had not seen Oliver in fifty years. But when the day began to come to a close, My thought would almost bring me tears.

My mother died in the flu epidemic in nineteen eighteen, Oliver and his wife Bertie, run a boarding house. My brothers took me to South Norfolk for a while, Oliver took me in with the consent of his spouse.

Yes he was a very jolly and likeable man, Always had a pleasing look, never seemed to get mad. I remember his two little girls, Oneida and Pauline, Their mother died sixty years ago, it was very sad.

Yes we children often played together, On the porch and in the street. It was in the hot summer time, True we were in our bare feet.

Oliver lived a life that was wroth while, He fought life's battle and the victory he won. He was the father of three devoted daughters, Oliver also left a third wife and a son.

Yes he's gone from this old world of uncertainty, To a glorious home beyond the blue. Where there will be no pain or sorrow, He will wait there patiently for me and you.

True Oliver lived his allotted time, Four score years and even more. Now he's gone to join with his loved ones, On that far away blissful shore.

The brilliant "fire" of a diamond is due to its high refractive index. A diamond seems to pull light into its center where it is reflected from the precisely-planned facets, multiplying the stone's brilliance.

We have a fine collection of lovely diamonds and engagement wedding sets in every price range. We enjoy showing them.
