Campaign Slated To Curb N. C. Shoplifting

Governor James B. Hunt has announced a statewide program to decrease shoplifting in North Carolina. The program is a combined effort of Women's Clubs, N. C. Merchants, public education, and state government.

Hunt said, "I want to personally commend Mrs. John V. Sutton, president of the N. C. Federation of Women's Clubs, William C. Rustin, Jr. president of the N. C. Merchant's Association, and Kevin King, N. C. Student President of the Distributive Education Clubs of America, for committing the full resources of their organizations to this effort. I am confident this coalition is a giant step toward substantially reducing the tremendous losses caused by shoplifting in North Carolina.

"So that this program gets the necessary support from State Government, I have asked Burley Mitchell, Secretary of the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, to offer his department's help in this cooperative effort. The Crime Prevention Division of that department has been working with each of those groups for the past several months to develop this program in written form. We need the help of every citizen to reduce shoplifting. Merchants, too, need to know what their rights are

Production By Satyrs Is Scheduled

"Showstoppers III" is in rehearsal by the Satyrs at College of The Albemarle. The first production of the school year has scheduled performances on October 30, 31 and November 1. Lucy Vaughan, drama instructor and director, said "III" will be woven from the same brightly-hued fabric as its highly-successful predecessors, "Showstoppers I and II."

appealing for any audience," she said. The Satyrs will feature skits and musical sketches drawn from the popular revues of Christy, Flo Ziegfield, George M. Cohan, Tony Pastor, and others in the first half of the show. Scenes from Broadway hits since 1940, will be spotlighted during the second half. Vaughan said the cast for the fall production includes some experienced newcomers to the area theatre scene. Among them are Stacy DiGiovanni, Donna McCarthy, Teresa

Jordan, Bob Baker, Andrea Basso, Jeff Barnes and Wendy Owens. Local theater-goers will recognize Kent Luton, Alice Rousseau, Jim Bridges, Donna Hall, Terry Owens, Jeff Kaufman, Kendall Byrd, Tracey Morse, Edwin Rousseau, Larry Perkins, Faith Shearin, and Robin

Cane Drive Now Underway

The Edenton Lions Club is conducting its annual White Cane Drive in cooperation with the N. C. State Association for the Blind, Inc.

The state Association was organized by the N. C. Lions in 1934 as a non-profit, statewide organization and is supported by Lions through this one annual fund raising project, The White Cane Drive. The association renders service to any blind and visually impaired person if there is a need and there are no other resources available. Funds raised will be used to prevent unnecessary blindness in North Carolina and for restoring the sight of those who have been categorized as blind. Besides helping those with impaired vision or loss of eyesights, the Association contributes to the benefit of everyone through its cooperation with research efforts to control the disabling eye disease - glaucoma.

Research indicates that slightly more than fifty (50)

ECU's Annual Health Careers Day

GREENVILLE — Approximately 60 hospitals, clinics and other health and human service related institutions in six states will send representatives to East Carolina University's annual Health Careers Day November 6. Chowan Hospital will be represented.

Students preparing for health and human service careers will meet with representatives for informal conferences regarding employment opportunities in their major fields of study.

Interviews will be held in the Nursing Building on campus from 9:45 A. M. until 1 P. M.

According to Furney James, director of the ECU Office of Career Planning and Placement, the institution representatives are particularly interested in meeting students in nursing, physical and occupational therapy, medical technology, medical record science, dietetics, music and recreational therapy, child development, special education, social work, and speech, language and auditory pathology.

ECU alumni as well as current students are invited to participate in the interviews, James said.

BIGGER IS BETTER

Perdue's bigger broiler house means a better net income.

100 extra feet of Perdue broiler house doesn't mean 25% more work for the owner compared to our 400 foot house, but it does mean 25% more gross income. It's Perdue's new 500 foot broiler house, and compared with a 400 foot Perdue house like we have been building, the net income is 32-37% better. The reasons for the improved cash flow are simple. Construction cost per square foot is less on the new 500 foot house. In fact, the 500 foot house can be built for 12¢-15¢ per square foot less than the 400 foot house. And because it holds more birds, the New House Guarantee is higher: $3,680 per flock, or $20,240 annual gross income based on 5½ flocks each year.

Another reason "bigger is better" is the increased fertilizer output; about 100 tons of chicken litter per house each year. Considering it costs approximately $25 a ton to buy the equivalent in commercial fertilizer, 100 tons of litter can provide a savings of $2,500 for the corn and soybean grower.

"The Perdue 500" features the same modern features as the "Perdue 400." Easy maintenance and care, less maintenance cost with plason drinkers, the new flex auger feeding system, and energy efficient fans for ventilation.

Plus it features a larger new house guarantee and better cash flow. In short, you get more of a good thing with the "Perdue 500." To find out about the Perdue broiler program, our new larger house, and our $1,000 rebate, mail this coupon or call us today. There's never been a better time to Talk Chicken with PERDUE.
