Crop Seminar Is Planned

Farmers in Virginia and North Carolina may obtain the latest information on corn, soybeans and wheat at the North Carolina-Virginia Field Crop Conference scheduled for January 21 in Virginia Beach.

The conference, co-sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Services in the two states as well as agribusiness leaders in the area is an outgrowth of the annual Tidewater Field Crop Conference.

Jim (Catfish) Hunter, farmers and former New York Yankee pitcher, will speak at the event. Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina has been invited.

The exhibits will be open and coffee served at 8:30 A.M. The program is scheduled to begin at 9:30 A.M. and conclude at 3:30 P.M. Over 50 companies will exhibit.

Other topics to be discussed by extension specialist from both states as well as other areas of the country include an in-depth look at wheat production and marketing, soil insecticides for corn and soybeans, equipment for no-till planting, land clearing, agri-economics and a segment on marketing.

Tickets are free if obtained in advance. Tickets can be obtained at the local Extension Office and at many agribusinesses or write: Tickets, Field Crop Conference, Agriculture Department, Municipal Center, Virginia Beach, Va. 23456.

Social Security Tax Benefits

By Lee Wallio
Field Representative
Most Social Security Taxes Paid Out In Benefits:

If you pay into Social Security, how much of each tax dollar do you think goes for administrative costs rather than for paying benefits?

A recent public opinion poll suggests that a majority of people believe it takes over half of each tax dollar to run the program. In fact, only 6 per cent of those questioned said administrative costs are less than 20 per cent.

These responses indicate that many Americans feel there is inefficiency in this basic program that now pays retirement, disability, and survivors checks to some 36-million people.

The facts, however, prove otherwise. Last year, the Social Security Administration's total administrative costs were only 1.3 per cent of benefit payments -- an all-time low.

This means that for every dollar you pay into Social Security, about 98.7 cents goes toward paying benefits for those who are now eligible.

Although operating costs have increased in actual dollars over the years, as Social Security has grown in scope, the ratio of costs to benefits has steadily decreased.

For example, costs were about 2 per cent of benefits in 1970.

This increased efficiency (with a slight reduction in staff) is due to such factors as: use of the computer as a major working tool; simplification of many administrative procedures and reduction of recordkeeping requirements.

Costs for operations Social Security per unit of work has increased more slowly than for service industries in general.

Administrative expenses include such items as salaries, rental of property and equipment, building operating expenses, and supplies.

They also include payments to the U.S. Treasury Department for collecting Social Security taxes and issuing checks, as well as costs incurred by States in making disability determinations.
