Federal Aid Cuts To Be Discussed

Federal budget cuts in health programs and their immediate and anticipated long-term effects for North Carolina's health system will be the topic of a day-long meeting February 9 at the Jane S. McKimmon Center in Raleigh.

Dr. Sarah T. Morrow, Secretary of Human Resources, will present the keynote address. Other speakers and panelists examining the subject will be: Dr. George Reich, regional health administrator for the U.S. Public Health Service; Rep. Ruth E. Cook, (D-Wake); W. E. Roye, N. C. Hospital Association; George Stockbridge, Capital Health Systems Agency; David Clarke, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of N. C.; G. R. Coble, N. C. Center for Public Policy Research; and Richard Merritt, George Washington University Intergovernmental Health Policy Project. Special reports on other states' responses to budget cuts and workshops are also scheduled.

The convocation is sponsored by the N. C. Health Council. Formed in 1948, the health council is a voluntary, non profit organization dedicated to improving communication and encouraging cooperation among the different health interests in the state.

The meeting is open to all persons and organizations involved in or interested in health care in North Carolina. Registration fee is $25 per person and pre-registration before January 26 is advised.

For more information and to register, contact Frank Emory or Thelma Hunter at the McKimmon Center at (919) 737-2261, or Scott Wallace, President-elect, N.C. Health Council at (919) 489-7431, ext. 2413.

Loan Program Gains Favor

PARK RIDGE ILL. — Support of a loan program to assure the stability of the tobacco industry is a basic concept in Farm Bureau's policy philosophy, Robert B. Delano says.

Delano, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said tobacco production is unique in American agriculture in that it has never cost any direct government funds with the exception of one year (1959, due to an unusual variety of tobacco that was not accepted by the trade.)

Because the loan program for tobacco is the only commodity support program that operates at no net cost to the government while the tobacco product industry generates nearly $60-billion annually toward the gross national product, Farm Bureau urges continuation of the current loan program, Delano said.

Earlier this week in a news conference, Delano had called for elimination of government subsidized programs by 1985 for the basic commodities of wheat, feed grains, cotton and rice that are included in the recently enacted farm bill. He said Farm Bureau wants to see agriculture on a market oriented basis by the time the new farm bill expires.

Because of tobacco's unique position in agriculture and the unusual circumstances under which it is marketed, the 200,000 tobacco farmers in 20 states need a loan program that will keep supply in line with demand, a position fully supported by Farm Bureau, Delano said.

Delano reported that in more than 40 years of the tobacco price support loans, the entire program has cost only $57-million — and most of that in that unusual year of 1959.
