Mrs. Robert Schofield Ariosa

Mr. Ariosa Claims Bride

Donna Rae Hodge of Kinston and Robert Schofield Ariosa of Towson, Md. were united in marriage at 5 P.M. February 26, in the chapel of Forest Hills Baptist Church in Raleigh. Rev. Ray K. Hodge, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Kinston and father of the bride, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Ariosa of Towson, Md. The bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, Benjamin Keith Hodge, of Winston Salem.

She is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Ray K. Hodge of Kinston, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Louis Harrell, Sr., of Edenton.

The bride chose for her wedding an informal gown of ivory poly-silk with an under-dress. It was fashioned with a Chinese neck and a V-necked yoke outlined in satin ribbons and an attached Bertha collar. A wide flounce ruffle encircled the yoke and the bottom of the dress which then hooked to the back of the dress to form a bustle. The long full sleeves were made of nylon and trimmed with lace edging.

The bride wore a sprig of baby's breath in her hair. She carried an all silk bouquet of pink and white roses, interspersed with baby's breath and accented with pink bridal ribbons and streamers.

Mrs. Brent Fleming of Raleigh, sister of the bride, was her matron of honor.

The groom chose as his best man his father, Mr. Robert J. Ariosa.

Doris Denise Holley

INSIGHT INTO EYESIGHT

Need More Light?

It amazes adults when they discover children reading a book or magazine in poor light or shadows. How can they do it? Young, healthy eyes can compensate for a lack of light because their focusing muscles are stronger and more flexible. But they'll get eye strain if they do this too often or for long periods of time. The eyes need light to see well.

This is especially true for older people. When the light is right, most older people can do any difficult job, from repairing broken furniture to fine needle work.

The best kind of lighting is a diffused light that covers a large area and eliminates glare. Glare can come from light shining directly into your eyes. Or it can come from light reflected off shiny surfaces.

It's a good idea to have more than one light on in a room. Then, when you leave the brightly-lit area you're not walking into shadows.

Resting your eyes from time to time is also helpful. So are regular eye checkups.

Headaches And Your Teeth

So, you've had headaches for most of your adult life. You've even taken them for granted and even assumed that they are a part of your normal life. Don't feel alone. Adults go on for years and years experiencing headaches on a routine basis feeling that because they are so routine, they must be normal. Often, these headache victims have seen physicians who may have diagnosed their symptoms as being caused by stress and treat it with pain medication or tranquilizers.

Well, it's possible that your headaches may be due an improper bite. Possibly, the place you should be for treatment is your dentist's office. These headaches are often muscle strain headaches and if the improper bite (called a malocclusion) is properly treated then the muscles of the jaw can then relax. You may be able to look forward to normal days without headaches in your future.
