Iredell Descendants Visit Edenton

The Fish Market, Etc. was the scene of a luncheon held April 10 in honor of Mr. and Mrs. David Iredell, descendants of Arthur Iredell, brother of James Iredell, Sr. Mr. and Mrs. Iredell came from London, England to be the Easter guests of Mrs. Cornelia J. Privott of Blount Street. The members of the James Iredell Association, the Edenton Tea Party Chapter DAR and the Historical Commission were in attendance.

John Morehead, Vice-President of the James Iredell Association, presided at the tables, introducing Mrs. George Hoskins who gave the invocation. The luncheon, enjoyed by all, was followed with a welcoming speech by Mrs. Cornelia J. Privott, who showed the group her gift from the Iredells, an ostrich egg decorated in the Faberges fashion with a beautiful picture of a Bullfinch on it.

Mrs. Privott read letters from Lady Diana, wife of Prince Charles, the Queen Mother, and the Queen, who had also received eggs decorated as was this one, thanking the artist for their eggs.

Mr. Iredell spoke of his

Two For One Contacts

If you've reached the point where you need bifocal corrective lenses to see well at a distance as well as close up, you don't have to opt for bifocal lenses.

If you've been wearing contact lenses and don't want to lose the comfortable feeling or natural look of your face, you can have separate contact lenses made for each eye. One will correct for distance vision, the other for near vision.

This may seem an unusual solution to bifocal needs, but it works. When you're looking at something, both eyes will see what you're looking at. But the eye that sees the object sharp and clear will your brain will see a sharp and clear image.

And even though one eye will only transmit a blurred image, you won't be aware of it. You will, if you put one hand over the eye that has the lens for that kind of vision (farsighted or nearsighted, depending on where you're looking). Then the only image you get will be a blurred one. Otherwise you'll see clearly at all times and never be aware of the difference.

Miss Vogue, Mr. Esquire

On April 10, contestants in the Miss Vogue - Mr. Esquire Pageant and their parents were given a special luncheon by the members of Nu Eta Omega Chapter, Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority. The Luncheon - one of several activities planned for the contestants, was designed to show appreciation to the parents for allowing and working with their child and the Sorority in this year's Pageant.

The Luncheon started with a brief welcome by Mrs. Vendetta Sutton. An introduction of contestants was presented by Mrs. Mary Copeland. Mrs. Mary Lewis introduced the parents. Blessings were given by Mrs. Hannah Owens. Some of the students from John A. Holmes High School provided entertainment. Members of the Sorority were then introduced. Special reminders to the contestants were given by Mrs. Jolyquin Belfield and closing remarks given by Mrs. Bettie Bemby.

Contestants in the Miss Vogue - Mr. Esquire Pageant will make their formal debut to society on May 8th, at 8 P.M., in the gym of D. F. Walker School.

Methodist Women

The Perquimans - Chowan Subdistrict of United Methodist Women will meet Wednesday at 10 A.M. at Oak Grove United Methodist Church. The Subdistrict Leader, Miss Helen Evans, urges all United Methodist Women and their pastors to attend.

The devotional will be given by Mrs. Charles B. Smith of Edenton. Special music will be provided by Mrs. Austin Weeks, soloist, accompanied by Mrs. John Bettis.

Mrs. Elizabeth Craft will lead the officers of the Elizabeth City District of United Methodist Women in presenting a program on the theme "Love Is Caring".

Mrs. Margaret Saunders, president of the Elizabeth City District United Methodist Women, has asked that each person attending bring a can of meat, such as tuna fish, corned beef, Spam, etc. This will be taken to the Robeson County Church and Community Center to be added to their food bank to assist the needy. The center is one of the projects of the North Carolina Conference of United Methodist Women.

Lunch will be served by the host church.

Nightingale Service

NORFOLK, VA - After 42 days of operations, Medical Center Hospitals officials are extremely pleased with the utilization of Nightingale, the area's new air ambulance service. Since the February 25 start-up date, the medically equipped helicopter has completed 35 missions.

"We are very happy with the initial indication of Nightingale's success. We believe this can be directly attributed to sophistication of the region's E.M.S. and medical communities," said Ed Holmes, the project's administrative coordinator.
