Children

Of Divorce

Children whose parents have been divorced aren't any more likely to have emotional problems than those who haven't had this experience.

But there are circumstances connected with a divorce that might cause potential problems if not handled properly. So keep in mind that children need to know what's going on — in language they can understand.

In addition, parents need to listen and accept their children's real feelings. This will be hard, for youngsters will probably be angry at parents and at the world. But they need to be able to vent these feelings.

It's also inappropriate for parents to expect children to meet their emotional needs. Youngsters just aren't capable of providing professional counsel.

How can you help children cope with divorce? One way is to make an effort to spend time alone with each child each day.

The Chowan Herald has set 4 P.M. Mondays as the final deadline for acceptance of all Classified and Legal Notices. Thank you for your cooperation.
