Testing To Be Completed

HERTFORD — W. L. Wright, district network switching manager, Carolina Telephone, announced that the final testing of equipment in the new digital office at Hertford, is being completed.

"This involves a verification of each telephone number in the Hertford Exchange. You will be called and asked to return a call to the company," stated Wright. "We apologize for any inconvenience."

There will be no telephone number changes as a result of the new office.

The new office will offer customer calling features for those who want it. "One of these features is 'call forwarding' and this is especially useful for people away from their telephone and can be reached at another telephone number within the same exchange," said T. F. Daniels, District Commercial and Marketing Manager. "There will be a nominal monthly charge for this feature or other special features a subscriber may choose," he stated.

The new office replaces dial equipment installed in 1938. This was the first dial office installed in the old Norfolk Carolina company.

Safety Program, "Mothers Against Drunk Drivers"

Raleigh — The Governor's Highway Safety Program, which is campaigning to reduce the number of drinking drivers in North Carolina, will assist groups to form MADD chapters in the state. MADD stands for "Mothers Against Drunk Drivers," a national movement that was started in California.

GHSP director Col. Edwin Guy said that the North Carolina effort will be coordinated by Floyd (Sam) Bass, who is the coordinator of several safety programs handled by the GHSP. Bass will serve as the liaison between MADD headquarters in California and North Carolinians interested in starting chapters. He will also provide information and speakers.

"The ground-swell of public concern over this problem has been phenomenal in recent months," Col. Guy said. "MADD is an effective way to channel this grave concern through constructive action. MADD members seek to focus attention on the problem, and to encourage legislators and the judiciary to be more concerned about drinking drivers."

MADD chapters are already chartered in Stanly and Richmond counties, said Bass, with others in the planning stage. "It is our intent to make formation of a MADD chapter an easy thing. It's not just mothers who are concerned about this problem. MADD can also mean Many Against Drunk Drivers, because a lot of people are concerned." Those interested in information about a MADD can contact Floyd Bass at (919) 733-3063.

95 C.O.A Students Receive Degrees

Degrees and diplomas were conferred upon 95 graduates by Dr. J. Parker Chesson, Jr., College of The Albemarle president, last Friday evening at the 20th Spring Commencement Exercises. The outdoor ceremony took place on the lawn at the community college's Elizabeth City campus.

Four Chowan County residents received degrees. Three earned honors. They were: Donna Johnson Downing, summa cum laude, A.A.S. general office technology; Kim Murph Fleetwood, summa cum laude, A.A.S. nursing; Pauline Renee Granby, A.A.S. general office technology; and Iris Doreen Meekins, magna cum laude, A.A. pre-elementary education.

Ms. Fleetwood also was one of two graduates who completed her course of study with a perfect 4.0 grade point average.

State Rep. Charles Evans, commencement speaker, praised the institution for being a part of one of the best community educational systems in the country.

"Our state's community college system is the third largest in the nation and, in my opinion and that of many of the experts in the field, it offers one of our country's finest programs of vocational and technical education," Evans declared.

He said the state now has 58 institutions which have more than a half million students enrolled. He also noted that the community college system works closely with industries throughout the state to assist in the training of employees and as a source of employment for many of its graduates.

Evans listed five basic principles of life which will better assure the graduates' forward progress toward their goals and ultimate success. "The first principle of good living which will tend to lead to success and personal happiness in industriousness," he said. "Those who are industrious are usually lucky, and luck is what happens when preparation meets opportunity."

Evans' second principle for success was courtesy. Following this, he listed honesty, perseverance and good habits, and character.

The speaker admonished the graduates to continue their educations if they are to be successful in today's rapidly-changing world. He
