

Scholarship To Be Awarded

The first Wachovia Technical Scholarship will be awarded to a second-year technical student at College of The Albemarle this fall. Lloyd Armstrong, student financial aid director, said applications for the $500 grant will be accepted through July 15.

Wachovia Bank and Trust Company established a $250,000 endowment last December, the first such gift in the history of the community college system. Income from the trust will provide 50 technical scholarships, valued at $500 each, for 37 institutions in the bank's service area. The 13 remaining scholarships will be distributed according to enrollment in technical training programs at the participating institutions.

J. Stanley Peel, Wachovia vice president and city executive in Elizabeth City, said one of the primary considerations of his firm is its concern about the problem of unemployment and underemployment in North Carolina.

"It became apparent to Wachovia that many desirable jobs go unfilled because there are not enough people with the necessary skills," Peel said. "On the other hand, the state has a unique system of community colleges and technical institutes prepared and eager to train people for those jobs."

Armstrong said full-time, second-year technical students who are enrolled in any of the eight technical programs at COA may apply. He explained that applicants must have and maintain a minimum 3.0 grade point average, and complete the regular financial aid applications required by the college.

A selection committee composed of Peel, Andrew H. Williams, COA board of trustees chairman, and one area citizen, will determine which applicant will receive the award. Dr. J. Parker Chesson, Jr., COA president, will serve as ex-officio member of the committee.

DUI Measures Recommended

The N.C. Bar Association recommended several measures to the Legislature last week in concern over alcohol-involved automobile accidents. The Association's Litigation Section proposed a resolution, which was adopted with minor changes, asking the General Assembly to adopt legislation to reduce drunk driving.

Specifically, the resolution asked the lawmakers to consider, among other measures, mandatory jail sentences, heavier criminal penalties, raising the drinking age, lowering the blood alcohol level in the legal definition of D.U.I. and impoundment of the vehicle involved.

"The important word is 'consider'," said William F. Maready, chairman of The Litigation Section. "We want the General Assembly to study the impact legislation such as this might have on a population."

"I don't care what it takes, whether we encourage or discourage convictions, as long as we get drunk drivers off the highway."

The resolution quoted statistics showing that over half of all highway deaths are caused by drunk drivers; that one out of 10 drivers on an average weekend night are drunk; that 65 per cent of drivers who kill themselves in single-car wrecks are drunk; and that 981 persons were killed in alcohol-related accidents in N.C.

In a last-minute amendment, Judge Franklin T. Dupree added the clause suggesting impoundment of forfeiture of the vehicle involved.

"I once had a hearing on a probation revocation," Dupree said.

"This man had been charged and convicted on three occasions, but had either been given limited privileges or taken a reduced charge everytime, so he was still running around in his automobile and drinking."

"I asked him what would have made him quit drinking and driving, would he have quit if they had taken his license away?"

"I don't think so your honor," he said.

"Then I asked him if he would have quit if he knew he was going to have to spend some time in jail."

"Maybe so, your honor, but I don't think so," he said.

"Well, what would have made you quit," I asked him. "Would you have quit if you knew that they were going to take your automobile away, and sell it and give the proceeds to the school fund?"

"That would have done it," he said. "I believe I would have quit then."
