Hours are from 10 A.M. to 9 P.M. on Friday and from 10 A.M. to 5 P.M. on Saturday.

A simple lunch will be served each day and a country dinner served on Friday evening. You will be hearing more about the menu, tickets, etc. for the Country Dinner and Simple Lunch. Plan to attend!

Among the newcomers there will be Emily Harrell with a fine line of lady's lingerie - robes, pajamas, slippers, etc. in pastels and designs and oh so lacy. Evelyn Ann Smith and Mother, Janie Stanton, will have a fine line of handmade baby clothes and garments for dolls. This display will take you back to days when tucks, drawn work, lace and sheer batiste made infant garments so elegant.

One of the youngest craftspersons will be Ellen Lane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Lane. Ellen takes after her mother, Ann, and grandmother, Maywood, when it comes to needle work. She will have an assortment of counted cross stitched pin cushions. Look for Ellen sharing a booth with Caroline Pratt and Mary White.

Fishing Tips

from...Tom Mann

Someone asked me the quickest way to learn how to fish an unfamiliar lake, when you lack the expertise of the pros who fish for a living. Well, the very best way I know is to hire a guide who, every day he can, fishes the lake you plan to fish.

Most guides are dedicated to giving you a full day's fishing for your money, and most of them earn every cent they charge. Being a specialist, the guide knows not only where the fish hang out but also he keeps up with their seasonal movements.

But, as in any profession, there are topflight guides and there are so-so guides, many times just a matter of personality traits. So it pays to inquire around to be certain you're engaging a guide who's earned his stature.

Watch where he goes, how he fishes, ask a thousand questions and remember his answers. In one day you can learn more from a good guide than you can in years on your own. I believe you'll say you never made a better investment!

Brer Tom's closing tip: When you're in the learning stage of fishing, it's wise to keep handy a small notebook for jotting down things you don't want to forget. Because if you don't jot it's soon forgot.

Check Your Social Security Record

Lee E. Wallio
Field Representative

People who work in employment covered by Social Security should check their Social Security record every 3 years or so.

Checking the record is especially important if the person changes jobs often or has more than one job.

A post-card form is available at any Social Security office for a person to request a statement of the earnings reported to his record.

A person's earnings record is very important.

Eligibility for benefits and the amount of any benefits due will be based on the information contained in that record.

Once a person receives a statement of earnings, he should examine it carefully to make sure that the proper amount of earnings has been reported to Social Security.

If the person's own records do not agree with the amounts shown on the statement, he should contact a Social Security office right away.

The person should bring his own records of the earnings that are available, such as W-2 forms or self-employment tax returns.

More information about Social Security earnings can be obtained by calling the Elizabeth City Social Security office at 338-2161.

School Television Programs

Television viewers in Chowan County will have a chance to preview school television programs September 6, from 9 A.M. until 3 P.M. on the University of North Carolina Center for Public Television.

It's an opportunity to learn how teachers and students use television in the classroom. The programs are interesting, entertaining, as well as informative. The program might be a lesson in economics or one in science or one in reading; you might take a lesson in French conversation or in English composition, and you might enjoy a short story classic.

Instructional television programs, selected by educators in the N.C. Department of Public Instruction and in the schools across the state, help teachers teach and students learn. They are termed instructional television programs, distinguished from the educational television programs airing on Center after 3 P.M. and on weekends.

Instructional television series are designed with the school curriculum in mind, selected to supplement courses of study in North Carolina schools, kindergarten through twelfth grade. Teachers' guides accompany instructional series so teachers can plan the lesson prior to broadcast. The guide provides activities for each lesson to help students learn the skills and concepts emphasized in the program.

"School television was used by over a million children during the last school year," State Superintendent Craig Phillips remarked. "It's a wonderful way to supplement textbook learning."

The N.C. Department of Public Instruction is responsible for the selection, acquisition, funding, and scheduling of the instructional television programs airing on Center during the school day. Instructional television began in 1957 as a joint effort between the University of North Carolina and the Department of Public Instruction. It has grown from four 30 - minute programs on world history, science, and mathematics broadcast Monday through Friday, to the present 1,500 programs covering all curriculum areas, kindergarten through twelfth grade.
