U.S. Congress

By U.S. Senator Jesse Helms
SAVINGS—I was understandably pleased a few days ago when the Senate finished a significant part of the congressional budget process, known as "reconciliation." Without boring you with parliamentary details, the "reconciliation" legislation required the Senate to cut back on proposed spending. To be precise, the Senate was directed to reduce proposed spending by a total of $11.2 billion. Thanks to the Agriculture Committee, proposed spending was reduced by a billion more than that — $12.3 billion.

It was interesting that the Senate Agriculture Committee provided $1,116,000,000 (89 per cent) of the additional savings approved by the Senate. Both food stamp spending and the dairy program were reduced in cost by about a half-billion dollars each.

HOW?—How were these spending cuts achieved? Largely by the dedicated work of a team of young staff members. A good many of them are North Carolinians - George Dunlop of Salisbury is staff director, Tom Boney, Jr., of Graham handles most of the food stamp legislation, Bill Brooks of Wilmington is in charge of forestry and natural resources matters, Keith Weatherly of Hickory handles various aspects of farm credit legislation, Martha Amburn of Edenton is in charge of legislative correspondence, and Mary Ferebee of Elizabeth City handles child nutrition legislation along with the many regulatory issues. Tom Clark, who attended Wake Forest University, is a staff attorney; he was born in Virginia but we claim him as a Tar Heel.

All of these are fine young men and women, and I am delighted to have them in leadership positions on the committee. You may never meet them, but they are your friends - they are saving you billions of dollars.

Woman Finds A New Home

Things are beginning to look up for Mrs. Betty Cartwright, 84, of New Hope. She has just been moved from a trailer located in Perquimans county outside of New Hope to a trailer in New Hope. A small move in distance but the move has meant a gigantic move upward in the standard of living for Mrs. Cartwright.

Mrs. Cartwright, a member of New Hope Assembly of God, lived next to the church when it was out in the country. She lived in a small two room trailer without any of the things that are considered the necessities for living, in fact the Department of Social Services has reported that the trailer where she lived had been condemned several years ago. Social Services chose not to move her though granting her a hardship waiver because of her age.

She lived with these conditions for many years after the church moved, that is until recently when Sam Taylor, the pastor of New Hope Assembly of God, Continued On Page 3A
