Mrs. Layton Exhibits Work

As in the past, the 1982 Mid - Atlantic Wildfowl Festival, housed in the Virginia Beach Pavilion yearly, proved to be a tremendous success. Festival viewers are always pleased at the overall beauty and expanse of the show. The Wildfowl Festival is produced by The Back Bay Wildfowl Guild, Inc., a non - profit, tax exempt organization dedicated to furthering the interest of the folk art of bird carving, painting, photography, and artifacts of wildfowl.

This year's show drew countless viewers and collectors and featured Virginia's 1982 duck calling contest for adults and youth, decoy carving, and painting contests for "working" birds and "decorative" birds and art auctions. Traditionally the decoy painting contest with various artists donating their time and ability to paint blank decoys furnishes the Guild with finished decorative decoys to be auctioned - all proceeds going to the Waterfowl Guild.

"Laney" Layton of Edenton was among the exhibiting artists showing her waterfowl paintings. This was the third consecutive year of showing for Mrs. Layton whose work consists primarily of original watercolors. Mrs. Layton donated work for auction as well as receiving an honorable mention for her Black duck decoy entered in the decoy painting contest.

The upcoming Festival will be held on March 4, 5, and 6, 1983 rather than the usual late summer date. Laney Layton will be showing in the N.C. Wildlife Show in Raleigh in December as well as in Columbia, S.C., in February.

Tooth-Colored Fillings
If you need a filling in one of your front teeth, you'll want it to be natural-colored, like your other teeth. In some cultures, people like to have gold or silver teeth showing when they flash a smile. But most Americans prefer the natural look.
Among the materials used today are acrylic, silicate, and composite resin. The silicate filling has the advantage of containing fluoride, which is slowly released to help prevent decay. The composite resin, however, is stronger than acrylic or silicate.
Choice of filling often depends on the size of the cavity and the location of the tooth. Any area where heavy chewing and grinding takes place needs a very durable material to protect it for as long as possible.
Fortunately, the teeth "up front" in your mouth are not as subject to wear as your back teeth are. Materials that can still protect against wear but have the advantage of being natural-colored like your other teeth can often be used there. Discuss this with your dentist the next time you need tooth repair "up front."
