Drinking Drivers Are A Constant Concern During The Holidays

RALEIGH—North Carolinians are approaching the most dangerous time of the year for highway driving—the 10 days covering the Christmas/New Year's holiday season.

The reason for this is no mystery: drinking drivers.

Unless something unusual happens, safety officials expect about 2,800 accidents during this period, from which there will be 1,650 injuries, and 15 or 16 deaths. Alcohol will be the cause of at least 50 per cent of these accidents.

These projections are based on what took place during the comparable period last year.

But with it all, there is a glimmer of hope, according to Edwin Guy, director of the Governor's Highway Safety Program and former commander of the State Highway Patrol.

"The figures for this past year showed a slight improvement over those for 1980-81, and if the public is vigilant and takes action against drinking drivers, we can reduce these terrible figures further," he says.

Guy spotlights two areas in particular where a responsible person can have a definite influence on the problem of drinkers who drive.

"First of all, anyone hosting a holiday party should watch guests closely to see that no one drinks too much. When this does happen, the next thing is to make certain that he or she does not get behind the wheel of a car: take the keys, arrange for someone else to drive, or keep the person overnight.

"I know this can be a hard thing to do sometimes," says Guy, "but a true friend, and a responsible host, will do whatever is necessary to keep a drunk from driving. It might be the kindest thing you do for that person."

Earlier this year the GHSP announced a new program for citizens action against drinking drivers—RADD, Report All Drinking Drivers.

The other thing a responsible person can do when he spots an impaired driver is to call the nearest law enforcement agency, and give the officer all the information possible about the car—make, color, license number, and direction it is heading. The police will take it from there. You don't have to give your name. Just start the report by saying, "This is a RADD call."

Teenagers who are relatively new drivers and drinkers are of special concern to law enforcement agencies, since many have not mastered either safe driving or intelligent drinking.

"Young people think that beer, which is very accessible, is less intoxicating than liquor," says Guy. "The truth is that a 12-oz. serving of 4 beer will cause a blood alcohol level of .02, as will a 3-oz serving of 12 per cent wine, or a 1-oz. serving of hard liquor that is 45 per cent alcohol."

"Whether you drink is an individual decision, but driving while drinking concerns the entire community."

"I urge all citizens of this state to make a special effort this holiday season to reduce the number of impaired drivers on our roads and highways."

Methodist Topic

"ADVENT: A SEASON OR AN OPPORTUNITY?" is the sermon topic selected by Rev. Richard R. Blankenhorn for the morning worship service on the Second Sunday in Advent, December 5, 11 A.M., at the Edenton United Methodist Church. The text for this message is Ephesians 5:16.

The Annual Council on Ministries Planning Session will take place on Sunday afternoon, December 5. The Council members will meet at the church at three o'clock.

Sen. Helms Is Guest Speaker At Corn Growers Assoc. Meeting

RALEIGH—U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms will be the featured guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Corn Growers Association of North Carolina. The event will be held on December 10, at the McKimmon Center on the campus of NCSU in Raleigh. Sen. Helms will speak at the 9 A.M. general session.

NCCGA President Harold Cutler of Scotland Neck, a Halifax County corn grower, said that corn growers are pleased that Senator Helms accepted their invitation to address the group so that they could hear about Reagan Administration farm policy first hand.

"Sen. Helms serves as chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, and he has been very instrumental in helping develop national farm policy legislation. He helped lead the successful fight to save the flue-cured tobacco program last summer," Cutler stated, "and he has stood shoulder to shoulder with North Carolina farmers in helping develop a sound national farm policy. Therefore, corn growers are pleased that Senator Helms has agreed to fill them in on legislation and hearings pending before the Senate Committee on Agriculture."

Cutler announced that Jack Parsons, president of the National Corn Growers Association, and NCGA Executive Assistant Mike Hall will speak to the corn growers on domestic marketing of corn in the 1980's after Senator Helms delivers his address.

At the luncheon meeting, N.C. Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham and Dr. J. E. Legates, dean of the School of Agriculture at NCSU, will present awards to the winners of the 1982 Corn Yield Contest.

"We are pleased that Dr. Bruce Poulton, new chancellor at NCSU, has agreed to be the main speaker at the afternoon general session. Most corn growers have not had an opportunity to meet or hear Dr. Poulton since he became chancellor, and this address will give them a chance to become acquainted with his thoughts regarding agricultural research, extension, and marketing," Cutler said.

President Cutler said that he expects over 300 corn growers to attend the Annual Meeting, since basic recommendations regarding association business and future national and state farm policies will be proposed and discussed by members.

The Corn Growers Association of North Carolina is made up of all corn growers who sell corn commercially, and it is supported by a one-half cent assessment on each bushel of corn sold through grain dealers. Policy for the NCCGA is made by a twenty-four member board of directors. Directors are elected for two year staggered terms.
