Here was a close look at the small fishes soon after hatching. Using nets and water sampling equipment, Kornegay demonstrated how the Wildlife Resources Commission checks on fish populations, their movement, and some of the effects that water quality has on their survival. PHOTO #2—Using a field windbreak as a backdrop, Mike Williams, Chowan County Extension Chairman, gave the students examples of how modern technology has improved today's agricultural output and how one farmer can now produce enough food and fiber for over seventy people. His session also emphasized how chemical and fertilizer applications along with other management practices are essential to better farming and food production. (SCS Photo)

Students Observe Environmental Wk.

To help emphasize the state-wide observance of Environmental awareness Week all seventh grade students in Chowan County participated in an Environmental Field Day Tour held on the Hayes Plantation April 13.

According to Lloyd C. Bunch, the Chowan Committee of the Albemarle Conservation District sponsored the event.

"Just as we vitally depend upon your soil, water and other renewable resources, we have a greater responsibility to use them wisely and with an eye to the future," Bunch said. "Educating our children in conservation should be an important part of any effort to provide for a healthy resource base."

Local agency people joined in to help the Chowan Committee carry out the tour. Learning stations were set up by the N.C. Extension Service, the N.C. Forest Service, the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission, and the USDA Soil Conservation Service, each giving the students resource information on a variety of subjects.

Forum On Children In Perquimans Co.

A public forum on children in Perquimans County will be held at Hertford Grammar School tonight, beginning at 7 o'clock. This forum will be a part of the celebration of the Week of the Young Child in Perquimans County which began April 24.

The week and forum are being sponsored by a committee of local people who represent a variety of agencies and organizations which provide services to the children and their families of the county.

Week of the Young child is celebrated across the nation to increase public awareness about the importance of children's early years and the services available to support families in their efforts to offer the best growing and learning opportunities for their children. The week is under the auspices of the National Association of the Education of young Children.

The Perquimans Forum is designed to call attention to the needs of young children and their families and to identify ways the total community can work together to assure that all the children of the county will have a bright future. Dr. Beatrice Carman of the Office of Day Care Services, N.C. Department of Human Resources, will be the guest speaker. She will present "Proud But Not

He demonstrated the proper technique for planting young trees and explained how the N.C. Forest Service provides fire control assistance to the area's woodland. Tree sections were used to show annual growth rate and other events that happened during the life of the tree. (SCS Photo)

PHOTO #4—Tony Short, District Conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service, uses a model farm to discuss various points as they relate to "Best Management Practices" that can be used by farmers and landusers to help conserve soil and water. The model showed the contrast between using such practices as crop residue management, cover crops, field borders, no-till planting, and vegetating problem erosion points, and then areas that were not managed with soil and water conservation in mind. Phil Tant, SCS Soil Scientist, and Robert Harrell, District Supervisor, rounded out this learning station by explaining certain soil characteristics and by demonstrating erosion problems that occur on unprotected lands. Mr. William M. Zarbock will lead the Edenton, N.C. area Hope Chest appeal to raise funds for the fight against MS (Multiple Sclerosis). The announcement was made by Nick Dombalis, Chairman of the Eastern North Carolina Chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society. Funds collected in the campaign will be used to expand support services and the medical equipment loan program to residents of Eastern North Carolina who are afflicted with MS.

Letter To The Herald Editor

Dear Sir:

I, J.J. Braswell was born June 26, 1886. Later I became a citizen of Edenton in 1942. I was retired by Carolyn McMullen, and then sent to Windsor Hospital by vocation for a hernia. Within 12 months I had to be sent to Chowan Hospital by Dr. Wright for another operation for another hernia. Later I was sent to Albemarle Hospital by Dr. Slade to be operated on for prospect glands. I was sent back to Dr. Wright and was told that I had cancer, and a bad heart. Later I was sent to Norfolk for treatments for my cancer over a period of 30 days, and afterwards I was carried to De Paul's Hospital and to Washington D.C. for cancer treatments.

My daughter put me in a hospital for convenience, and to be close to her for treatments in Virginia (Alexandria). The hospital in Virginia would not accept my medicare, due to the fact that it was from North Carolina. Returning to Chowan County, Hollowell Drugs wouldn't accept my medicare from Virginia.

At the same time my S.S. was cut forty some dollars. I had been receiving ten dollars worth of food stamps; they were cut off completely. Before I left Chowan County, I was living in Chowan Court Apartments. When I got back they refused to rent me another apartment. All of my furniture is in storage in Virginia. I have no place to put it.

Would you please take these problems into consideration and please assist me in regaining my apartment and pay medical bills.

Yours very truly
J.J. Braswell
