

Special Race Is Planned

The Chowan-Edenton Optimist Club announces a new twist to their annual "Fabulous Fourth of July" celebration. This year the club will replace the formal early afternoon parade with its first "Anything That Goes And Floats Race." I will explain. The race is for those vehicles that can be moved or propelled over land, as well as water, by human means only. There is no limit to the number of people to one craft. The race will start in front of John A. Holmes High School and move to the end of Broad Street and then into the water. There will be prize categories, one for the best time in the race and one for the most humorous craft.

To receive more information on this wild and wacky twist to the "Fabulous Fourth of July" contact: Chuck Smith, Chairman, "Anything That Goes & Floats"; Office — 482-7766; Home — 482-4597 or write: Chuck Smith, Chairman, "Anything That Goes & Floats", P.O. Box M, Edenton, N.C. 27932

Benefits Are Discontinued

RALEIGH—An estimated 21,000 jobless workers in North Carolina will no longer receive extended benefits from unemployment insurance claims according to the North Carolina Employment Security Commission. The extended benefits program ended May 14.

Changes in the insured unemployment rate determine the beginning and end of an extended benefits period. When the insured rate rises above 5 per cent, an extended benefits program is triggered on and must remain in effect for 13 weeks. At the end of the 13 week period, if the rate falls below 5 per cent, the program is terminated automatically. Due to recent insured unemployment rate declines, the week ending May 14 was the last payable week for those claimants now receiving extended benefits.

The most recent extended period began in February 1983. Payments have totaled more than $24-million since that time. Extended benefits, for a period up to 13 weeks, have been paid when an unemployment insurance claimant exhausted regular benefits.

While no extended benefits are available after May 14, a claimant may be eligible for federal supplemental compensation (FSC) for a period up to 10 weeks beyond regular benefits.

Unemployment insurance claimants are advised to contact the local office of the Employment Security Commission for complete information and service.
