Funding For Youth Groups

Are you a member of a Chowan County youth group or an organization which is planning an innovative youth program? Would a little money help? Funds are available to assist you.

The N.C. State Youth Council awards a total of $6,500 each year to local organizations proposing worthy projects. Funds will be awarded three times this year in September, November, and January. Deadlines for applying for the mini-grants are August 24 and November 2 of '83 and January 11 of '84.

Applications are screened and awards are approved at the State Youth Council Board of Directors meetings. Awards are reviewed by the State Youth Advisory Council before they are granted.

For more information and a mini-grant application form, contact the Youth Involvement Office, Elks Building, 121 W. Jones St., Raleigh 27611, or telephone 919/733-5966.

The State Youth Council is a component of the Youth Involvement Office and networks youth councils across the state. Although the council advises existing councils and helps new ones get started, the grants are not restricted to youth councils.

The Carolina Review: Green Probe

MORE GREEN... Color continues. With the issuance of indictments by the grand jury last week--against Green, and new ones against Sen. R.C. Soles--a lot of lawmakers in Raleigh were really in a quandry.

Some of the senators may have been backing off slightly in their staunch defense of the lieutenant governor. It wasn't that anyone was saying anything bad about Green, they just weren't saying anything at all.

As Green was being fingerprinted at the courthouse, lips were being sealed at the legislature. "Yeah, some folks are uneasy. The atmosphere is bound to have changed," said one senator.

The best sources in town are drying up. Of course, from the lieutenant governor's office, it's "no comment."

The troubles are only now beginning to have an affect on legislative business, not necessarily because of the lieutenant governor. Still, one senator did remark last Friday that Green did seem to be "out of the chamber (the Senate chamber) right much."

The real affect of the trouble might be an increased anxiety to adjourn, even more so than usual, in the Senate. "Most of the people I know just want to wrap things up and get out of town," was the way one legislator put it.

problem is that the two plans are substantially different. The House would increase alcohol taxes over 20 per cent and eliminate the sales tax refund for merchants. The House version would also add a 2 cents per mile "weight-distance" tax on heavy trucks.

The Senate version has none of that, and even some House members agree the Senate bill is better. "I hope we lose on this one," said one distraught representative who was strong-armed two weeks ago by the House leadership to vote for the House package.

But the House conferees appointed to work out a compromise with the Senate know that the Senate wants to get out of town. Their hope is to hold out until the Senate gives up and agrees to the House package.

Senators say that won't happen. Chances are that it won't and the final tax package will be nearer the Senate version.

It may be July 15th before they go home.
