A STRONG DISCOURSE ENTITLED. "MAN'S CONDITION: GOD'S REMELY."

An Address Delivered at the Mildmny Conference by Sir Robert Anderson, K. C. B., LL.D .- The Spiritual Helpless. ness and Hopelessness of Man.

LONDON, ENGLAND.—The following address, entitled, "Man's Condition, God's Remedy," was delivered at the Mildmay Conference by Sir Robert Anderson, K. C. B., LL. D. The special spicet assigned to me is The Spiritual Helplessness of Man by Nature, and the New Birth From Above."

I am not here to defend the dogmas that theology has based upon this truth. What concerns us is the truth itself. I say this with emphasis, because of what is passing around us.

And this should be our position in re-

And this should be our position in re-gard to all the great doctrines of faith. The age of creeds is passed. In days of chivalry, when men had respect for truth and honor, creeds shut out those who could not honestly accept them. But now they avail nething to protect the gold against "thieves and robbers." Men will publicly, and in the most solemn way, pledge their belief in every Christian truth in order to gain phice in but churches; and as soon as they secure the prestige and pay which office affords, they use the publis to attack the very truths they are pledged and subsidized to defend. This being so, let us abandon the out-works of our creeds, and, falling back works of our creeds, and, falling back upon the Bible, stand four-square in its defense.

In this spirit I approach my subject. I am not ignorant of what theology teaches about human depravity, nor of the controversies respecting it which preceded the settlement of our creeds. But on this platform I will recognize no authority save an open Bible. My reason for saying this is because here, as on many other ques-tions, the opponents of the truth dwe their vantage ground to what is called Chris-tian doctrine on the subject. For the doctrine is inconsistent with facts, where as between truth and fact conflict is im-

> A natural man, i. e., a man who has not experienced the new birth, and who has not the Spirit of God, may live a life of the highest morality and rectitude. Scripture testifies that in these qualities the Apostle Paul made no advance after his conversion. It is no answer to this to say that in his unconverted days he came under the external influences of ditain such a life of purity and piety and zeal, albeit he was spiritually dead in sins.
> He took to religion as another man might take to pleasure, or to study, or to trade, or to drink. But in this, as he himself declares, he was only following his natural bent—"the desires of the flesh and of the mind"

Neither is it an objection that such a case is exceptional. What man has done men may do. If the Fall made it impossible for men to live pure and upright lives, in would be unjust in God to judge them for their vices.

There are two great standards or principles of divine judgment. With those who hear the Gospel, the consequences of accepting or rejecting Christ are final and irreversible. As for the rest, men will be judged by the law of their being, whether as stamped on heart or conscience, or as formulated in express commands at Sinai. THE NATURAL MAN.

The first three chapters of Romans claim notice here. The first chapter describes the condition in which the mass of the was sunk even in days when the tide of human progress and cul-ture was at the flood, and when mose-Paganism held up a standard of life as high as any that apostate Christendom presents—cults of which one at least had Some genius has devised a beefsteak such spiritual vitality that three centuries afterwards it bid fair to supplant Chris tranity as the religion (I am not speak ing of the true Christianity of the true Church of God) maintained its ascendthe chief characteristic rites and errors of the Paganism which it thus persecuted.

These things need stating if we are to understand aright the closing words of the first chapter of Romans. The vile practices of the heathen world were not due to ignorance. They knew that their deeds were evil. They knew that deeds were evil. They knew the judg-ment of God, that they who practiced such things were worthy of death, and yet they

But the case of Saul of Tarsus was wholly different. If what men call conscience were the arbiter of human conthat were right which a man honestly believed to be right, his was a perfect life. As judged by any and every human standard, Saul of Tarsus was a pattern saint; but as judged by God he was a pattern sinner. And if you read the middle verses of Romans 3 intelligentlesson you will learn from It is God's estimate of the life of the natural man at his best-the life of the upright, pious, zealous Jew under law. "For that which is highly esteemed among men is abomination in the sight of God."

The story is told of the first Duke of Cambridge, that when, in the reading of the Decalogue, the Seventh Commandment was reached, instead of the orthodox response, he answered, in an aside, that was plainly audible, "I never did that." But here was a man who could make a like response to every commandment in the Decalogue. "As touching the righteousness that is in the law, blameless."

was his pround boast.
You will say, perhaps, that this proves that he was utterly blind and dead. But that is precisely what I am insisting on; that so far is it from the truth that uman nature is hopelessly corrupt and lepraved, as men judge of corruption and depravity, that a natural man may live a life that would put to shame half the saints in the calendar. By a course of un-Christian asceticism and severe penances for "punishing the body," these calendar saints attained to what men deem saintship. But to this man saintship was as natural as sin was to many of the saints of the calendar

One of the tests which people hold to be nal is that man shall "do his best." inal is that man shall more can possibly be expected This man 'did his best,' and best was a "record" that has never been beaten. What purity of life was his! What piety! What burning zeal! What self-sacrificing devotion to what he be-lieved to be the cause of God! But looking back upon it all, he writes, "Who was be-fore a blasphemer." And what a blas-searchlight, he declares himself the chief of sinners. Scanning the long line of all say a word, says the New York Tribune.

11 these were not the words of an inspired Apostle in an inspired epistle, we might suspect exaggeration. And yet they only express the well recognized principle responsibility deepens guilt. Of course he knew no better. But that only made his case the worse, for if ever there was a man who ought to have known better it was he. And so he takes his place as "chief of sinners." And he humbly adds,

"I obtained mercy. And he repeats this. For he was twice dant grace" in calling him to the apostle-

THE WORK OF REDEMPTION.

The Epistle to the Romans goes on to unfeld the doctrine of salvation. Sin arraigns the sinner before the Divine judgment seat, and he stands there as guilty and doomed. Salvation therefore can only be through redemption, and redemption must be by blood. But as we have seen, sin has another aspect: it corrupts and deprayes the whole spiritual being. The sinner therefore needs a new nature. He must be born again, born from above.

But these truths must never be separated. The WORK OF REDEMPTION.

The Epistle to the Romans goes on to unfeld the doctrine of salvation. Sin array again, born from above.

The resignation of Secretary of State.

Will Be Mamie Description of Thomas Arias, secretary of State of the republic of Panama, apparently ends the division of political parties on the Isthmus. Pablo Arosemena, leader of the opposition, said to the Associated Pression. But these truths must never be separated. The Spirit's work depends upon the work of Christ. Hence the amphasis with THE WORK OF REDEMPTION.

which we are told that Christ same by water and blood; not by water alone, but by water and blood—as the R. V. renders it, "by the water and the blood."

We all know what the blood means. We are "redeemed by the precious blood of Christ as of a lamb without blemish and without spot." But some of us are much at sea about the water. The water and the blood are figurative expressions. But the figures are typical. And if we understand the types, both will turn pur thoughts to the sacrifice of Calvary. The water was "the water of purification" of Numbers 19. Water that was serve monial areacy to the sin offering. But the sin offering was only for a redeemed people; a people already redeemed by the blood of the Paschal Lamb. When the Lord returns in blessing to Israel, then as Ezekiel 86 teaches us, He will come "by as Ezeklel 86 teaches us, He will come "by the water." But this is because His first pomping was not by the water only, but by the water and the blood. The blood has already been shed, redemption is ac-

The two, I repeat, must never be sepa-God's work, so also is the new birth. Like the Apostle's ministry (Gal. 1: 1, R. V.), it is "not from men, neither through man." No ordinance or "sagrament" has anything to do with it. Men can fix time and place for ordinances; for ordinances relate to earth; but the new birth is from above. The Spirit breathes where He wills.

It is to this thirty-sixth chapter of Eze-kiel that these words of Christ refer. Three elements in the new birth are speci-(1) "I will sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean." (v. 25.)

"I will give you a new heart." And I will put My Spirit within (3) "And I you." (v. 27.) 'THE' WATER OF REGENERATION. In Matt. 19:28, the time of its fulfillment for the man is designated by the Lord as "The Regeneration." And in the Suly other passage in the New Testament where that word occurs, it is used in con-

"the water of purification and the Ezekiel prophecy. I allude of course to Titus 3:5: "He saved us by the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Ghost." The word here used is loutron. It is mis-rendered "washing," for it is a noun substantive and not a verb; and the R. V. gloss (margin) is misleading, for loutron is never used in the Greek Bible for "the laver." But in the Greek Version of Ecclus. 34:25 it is used for the vessel which held "the water of purification.' But to return to the Divinely appointed rite of the Jewish religion, What was the symbolism of the water? Scripture itself supplies the answer. The word loutron like the word "regeneration," occurs only twice in the New Testament. I have already spoken of Titus 3:5; the other passage is Eph. 5:26. Christ gave Himself for the Church, "that He might sanctify and cleanse it with the loutron of water by the Word." In the type the Israelite reached the sacrifice by means of the water; in the antitype the believer reaches the sacrifice by means of the Word. Hence the language of Scripture, "the loutron of water in the Word." The water of purification was, as we have seen, the water of regeneration; and it is by the Word that the sinner is born again to God. It has nothing to do with mystic arts or shibboleths after the pattern of ancient Paganism. 'We are born again' (as the inspired Apostle teaches) 'by the Word of God'." "the living and atomally abiding living and eternally abiding

How can helpless, hopeless, dead — as dead bones scattered on the earth—be tain to God? "Can these bones born again to God? prophet to cast himself on God. And the 37th chapter of Ezckiel gives the answer: Preach to them. Call upon them to hear the Word of the Lord. (v. 4). This is man's part; or if anything more remains it is "Prophecy unto the breath"—pray that the Spirit may breathe upon these dead. The rest is God's work altogether. dead. The rest is God's work altogether. For "the Spirit breathes when He wills." Men preach; the Spirit breathes; and the dry bones live. Thus it is that sinners are born again.—London Christian.

The Opposer of Christ.

An unloving spirit is the worst treacher to Christ that we can offer. How often as those who are full of good works for the Lord stop to think of this? The harsh word spoken by the busy teacher or super intendent or pastor is a travesty on the profession such a one makes. For Christ is one with God, and God is love. Unlove is anti-Christ. We cannot serve Christ while unlove for any child of His is in our hearts or words. "And if I have the gift of prophecy, and know all mysteries and all knowledge; and if I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but have not love, I am nothing. And if I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and if I give my body to be burned, but have not love, it profiteth me nothing." "This is My commandment, that we love one another."

Look Ahead. There is glory for the time to come. great many people seem to forget that the best is before us. Dr. Bonar once said that everything before the true believer is This thought took hold on my soul, and I began to look the matter up and see what I could find in Scripture that was glorious hereafter. I found that the kingdom we are goin to inherit is glorious; our crown is to be "crown of glory;" the city we are going to inhabit is the city of the glorified; the songs we are going to sing are the songs of the glorified; we are to wear garments of "glory and beauty;" our society will be the society of the glorified; our rest is to going is to be full of the glory of God and of the Lamb. There are many who are always looking on the backward path and mourning over the troubles through which they have passed; they keep lugging the cares and anxieties they have been called on to bear and are forever looking at them. Why should we go reeling and staggering under the burdens and cares of life when we have such glorious prospects before us?-D. L.

Let our prayer be ever for more holiness and more fitness for the kingdom. Thei shall the tabernacle of God be with men and we shall be His people, and God Him self shall be with us.
