Typical Large Hen House With Electric Lights and Reflectors

About 800,000 of this loss was offset by the movement of urban population to the farm.

Farmer's Value to Nation

To some this movement away from the farm is an alarming symptom. Yet as a nation we are not so much concerned with the specific number of people living on farms as we are with the volume of food production, and government figures show that this is being maintained.

In a small degree our commercial development of the past seventy-five years has been made possible by increased efficiency in food production on the part of the farmer. Power and power uses are well established on the farm. Today the American farmer uses power, lots of it, and he will undoubtedly use an increasing amount in the future. Rural progress depends in no small measure upon this.

Power Now "the" Thing

In view of what the use of power on the farm has already accomplished, it is no wonder that the farmer is looking over the fence into the electrical field. He wants to know what agricultural possibilities are to be unlocked by this mysterious power which flows noiselessly over the wires.

No one can doubt that the general introduction of electric service on the farm will improve living conditions, making available to rural districts practically every convenience now enjoyed by urban dwellers. Electric service has literally revolutionized living conditions in the cities, and agriculture is determined to keep step with this development.

Vision, Courage, Study Are Needed

To secure maximum results with minimum costs, in working out applications of electricity to agriculture, vision, courage and determination to succeed are essential. The power problems of the farm must be investigated by the best talent available, and the application of electricity to this field must be developed along sound economic and engineering lines.

Electricity has already done so much for our urban population that maximum rural development without electric service is unthinkable. We will never be on a secure foundation until the farm is on as attractive a basis as the city, from the viewpoint of living conditions and business opportunity.

Electric Lights and Reflectors mean a sixteen or eighteen hour working day, and thereby invariably put the birds out of condition. This practice, Prof. Rice declares, is the principal reason for dissatisfaction with the use of lights to increase egg production.

The type of lighting unit which his experiments found the most effective is a standard 40-watt Mazda lamp with a cone-shaped reflector sixteen inches in diameter at the base by four inches high and hung six feet from the floor. This gives light for the perches as well as the floor, and so prevents any of the hens from remaining on the roost when it is desired to have them scratching for feed.

IS PROLONGING LIFE

Women on Farm of the Future May Find Electricity Adding to Their Years.

Several men who are leaders in the farm electrification movement have expressed their belief that the farmer appreciates fully the humanitarian aspect of electric power on the farm, over and above its value to him in dollars and cents.

Dr. E. A. Stewart, of the University of Minnesota, declares that farmers will have electricity in order to make life convenient and happy, irrespective of whether or not they are always able to make their electrical installation show a dollar and cents profit.

Simultaneously, M. H. Aylsworth, executive manager of the National Electric Light Association, asserts his conviction that electricity will add from fifteen to twenty years to the lives of farm women and will in many cases change misery into happiness.

"Water in the home, pumped by electricity, the electric iron, the electric washing machine, the vacuum cleaner, electric range, refrigerator, percolator—all these things are unknown to farmers' wives and daughters. Electricity will bring them. And they will be happiness-makers, although not a bit more important than the advantage of electric lights."

Night Coughing Stopped Quickly By Simple Treatment

Thousands who are troubled with persistent coughing at night, which robbing them of valuable sleep, break open to dangerous infections, can quickly act to prevent this danger through a very simple treatment. People who have hardly been able to rest at all on account of coughing spells have found they can sleep the whole night through undisturbed often the first time they try it.

The treatment is based on a remarkable prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You simply take a teaspoonful at night before retiring, and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it, without following with water. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and kills soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of the coughing. The result is you really sleep soundly the very first night, and the entire cough condition goes in a very short time.

The prescription is highly recommended for pneumonia, croup, colds, hoarseness, laryngitis, and is wonderful for children's coughs and spasmodic croup—no harmful drugs. Economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good drug-gists. Ask for

W. N. C. Rally Held Wednesday

The rally of the Western North Carolina Baptist Association was held in the local church here Wednesday. The rally was held in response to a call issued by Rev. R. L. Randolph, of Bryson City, field worker for Western North Carolina, for the purpose of discussing different phases of the denominational work for the year.

The meeting was opened at 10 o'clock in the morning with a devotional and song service, after which a season of prayer was held for all the denominational work.

Rev. L. P. Smith, of Andrews, was elected chairman and presided over the meeting. The program in the morning consisted of short talks on the following topics: State Missions, by Rev. T. L. Sasser; Home Missions, by Rev. L. P. Smith; Foreign Missions, by Rev. H. H. Hyde; How Our Money is Spent, by Rev. R. L. Randolph. Rev. L. R. Creel, of Bryson City, delivered the inspirational address at the 11 o'clock hour.

At noon the ladies of the church served a most sumptuous dinner. The regular March prayer week of the Woman's Missionary Society was coordinated with the associational program and the society met at the church where the regular inspirational program was carried out.

The afternoon was given over to a roundtable discussion by pastors and laymen of the different churches of the association, and ways and means of reaching the churches and propagating the educational information of the 1925 program of North Carolina Baptists were discussed and plans fostered for carrying out the program and of meeting the difficulties that confront the association.

A vote of thanks was tendered the ladies by the body for the splendid dinner and courteous manner in which the visitors were entertained. A day of Christian fellowship was enjoyed by all in attendance upon the meeting. The evening services were dispensed with in order that the visiting delegates might attend the revival services at the Methodist Church.

Those taking part in the discussions were: Revs. R. L. Randolph and R. L. Creel, of Bryson City; H. H. Hyde, of Hayesville; L. P. Smith, of Andrews; H. C. Whitaker, of Marble; C. F. Martin, moderator of the association, of Martin's Creek; Algia West, of Marble; and Mr. C. F. West, of Marble; T. L. Sasser, of the local church; and Messrs. C. F. Martin, of Martin's Creek, and G. H. Cope.
